

---

The topic today will be more on the one we have touched upon earlier, namely the subject of time. As we have already stated, the day is coming soon when your concept of time will be torn asunder once and for all, and although this will be a liberation in more ways than one, it will also be a day of reckoning. Let us explain.

From day that onwards, mankind will have to face the fact that everything it has put its stakes upon has to come up for consideration. In other words, nothing will ever be the same. Just consider the fact that for thousands of years mankind has adhered to the "fact" that they are the sole entity in the whole of Creation capable of acting in an advanced manner. In other words, apart from all of the other living creatures on your planet, there is nothing sentient at all in the universe, and as such, you have counted yourselves as the rulers of creation, as you are the most advanced beings you know of. Well, as the timelines collapses and you will find yourselves faced with the fact that not only time, but so much else, is very different from what you have surmised up until now, so also the fact that you are not alone in this whole vastness of being will become apparent. And it will not take you much time to also discover the fact that you are by comparison far, far less advanced than you mayhaps thinks at the moment. In fact, you will literally see with your own eyes that you lag far behind so many other civilizations out there, and you certainly have a lot to learn in order to try to pick up the distance between you. This will certainly seem to be more than a little daunting to you all, and it all starts with the ability to embrace all of the implications of having multiple timelines to choose from will bring with it.

You see, the ability to be able to freely move between them will literally set free so much of your inherent energy, as the confines of this strictly limited one you have been shackled to has also ensured that you cannot access the information contained in all of that sea of possibilities we have talked about earlier. In other words, setting you free from that singular timeline will also enable you to literally drink from this ocean of time and information, as time does not stand alone as just a definition of movement and progress. Time also encompasses so much more, as it is not only a continuum of sequences, but also a holder of information. We know this will sound very confusing now, but we want you to start thinking about time as so much more than defined by numbers on a screen or the dial on a watch face. Time is a very fluid concept, and a very intelligent one as well as it is so much more than just the counting out of hours and seconds. It is also intelligence, in that it contains so much energy in itself, so going from a single timeline to multiple ones will also be like going from single, limited source of energy and over to a limitless supply. In other words, you will be able to open up to so much once that single timeline of yours reluctantly lets go of the hold it has on you, and then everything will literally open up in front of you. Because along with these limitless options of time comes clusters of information, and this information will literally set you free from all of the confines you have been under up until now.

It will set you free, but at the same time, it will also take away all of the foundations you have built your lives upon, and this will be literally earth shattering to so many. For what can you believe in when everything you know is shown for what it is, namely but a small fragment of all that exists? And how can you not be challenged by the fact that you as a human being is only a tiny fragment of the number of sentient beings in existence in this vast Creation? As we have said earlier, you are the lucky ones, as you have chosen to be exposed to these facts before the revelation so to speak, so you have started to get used to the idea that you are not alone in Creation, but for the rest of your fellow men, this revelation will be a shock that will be too much to take in, and the fallouts from this will be many indeed. Let us just finish off today's missive by saying that it is therefore important to start to stretch your minds as much as you can in the time ahead, and start to make room for not only so much more time, but also so much more information. It will more than challenge your capacities dear ones, but do not be afraid, for this is in fact only old news to you all. Remember, this is actually a case of re-mem-bering, and as such, you already carry this information inside, but you have not yet been allowed to get access to it. But soon you will, and just as a muscle that has been left unused for too long a period, it will be somewhat uncomfortable and ungainly at first, but soon, you will be able to flex those muscles yet again, and you will start to put your faith in their strength and test out their abilities.

---

172

As the times passes and the lessons and challenges only seem to mount in number and intensity, many will have a hard time keeping the focus. We understand this well, as you have all gone through so much alteration and altercations already, and you might feel less than disposed towards working ever harder. When will we have a much longed for break, you will think, and when will we be finished with all of this hard toil? We wish we could say that from this day forward, you will rest in bliss and harmony, but alas, that is not yet the case. We do not think this will come as a surprise to any of you, but still, we think you all need some extra encouragement at this point. Let us just say that you have more than overwhelmed us all by your tenacity and your willingness to give your heart and soul to this process, and the results from all of your hard work is astounding indeed. However, as these results so far may seem less than tangible to you all, and the only outcome so far seems to be exhaustion and fatigue, we think you need another dosage of peptalk from us all. Not to pull the wool over your eyes in any way, just to help you see above this sea of discomfort and unease that you seem to swim in at the moment.

As we were saying, many of you will have hard time seeing any results from all of your efforts, but we can see them, and they are glorious indeed. To you, they might seem small and insignificant, if visible at all, but to us, they signal the victory of a battle that was started a long time ago, and that has been fought in so many ways and on so many levels, but now is in its finishing stages. Let us explain.

You are all warriors, and in more ways than you mayhaps see yourselves as. You are warriors of the light, and you have joined forces with all of those other beings currently working and fighting so hard to raise the level of energies on your little planet, a planet that has been held captive in the lower vibrational ranges, in order for a few dark beings to keep you all back. They have been very successful in doing just that, but now, you have all, by your communal efforts, managed to raise the level of energy enough to ensure a total shift in the whole atmosphere if you will on your planet of abode. This has been a long and tough struggle, and for many, the battle scars are almost uncountable, but you can all wear those scars with pride, as they show that you have given it all in this fight for the reappearance of light on this little blue globe. And with it, you can also claim to be a part of the victorious army, an army composed of people just like you, all carrying their individual load in this great exodus towards the higher spheres. You have all given all that you carry inside of you to this battle, and as such, even the sides you consider to be your darkest parts have taken part in this epic battle. In other words, you have taken your duality and laid it across the great chasm that divided your world from the rest of creation, and by giving up your duality, you have in fact fused your world tight to the rest of us, and thereby managed to expunge your past.

In other words, you have all managed to make yourselves whole again, as you have managed to connect the two halves you have been cut into previously and help them to connect back into a seamless whole. And with you, so also your whole world, as you are but a fragment of a whole, and once you as a fragment heals, so to the whole. We know this will throw many into confusion, but let us just say that you are so much more powerful than you have hitherto seen, and your actions so much more important too, as this is not only a personal journey for each and every one of you, it is also a journey for us all, as you by your actions are healing old wounds that have been painful to us all.

It will not seem like that to you at the moment, as you are still suffering through the completion of this healing process, but trust us when we say that the pains from this coming back together as one- process will soon dissipate, and the feeling of wholeness will start to seep through in so many ways. So rejoice dear ones, you have become whole again, and with you, so have we all, and we salute you as the greatest warriors ever seen, because you have all gone across that great chasm inside and you have managed to close that rift where you were once torn asunder by those with ill will. They cannot control you any more, as they are powerless against your wholeness. And remember, by your actions, thousands upon thousands of other souls will find the courage to do the same. They have also stared into that abyss for ages, but now, they find that strength they have inside to take a leap into the unknown. Some will falter at the last instant, and they will not be able to trust their strength enough to give themselves the push they need to reach the other side. But for every one who literally make themselves fall short of their own strength, there are thousands who will be able to close that gap inside that they have feared for so many lifetimes, and they will be able to join you. And so the wounds will heal, and you will be complete, and so too us. For we are your brethren, just as you are ours, and together, we will celebrate the victory of re-union and singleness, and we will do so for eternity.

---

173

Let us begin this missive by saying that the amplitude is once again increasing, and we gather that many of you have already felt this in your very bones. You see, this restructuring of your physical body is certainly being felt in those least flexible parts of you, namely the densest parts of your structure, and as such, you have mayhaps already suffered some rather painful alterations already. This will feel very unpleasant at times, and if these pains occur in parts of your cranium, they might very well be mistaken for something else. Do not fear these movements or shifts dear ones, they can in many ways be likened to the shifts of your continental plates, and as such, this grinding and sliding will be felt all over, but they will certainly not create the same kind of havoc the shifts in your planet's continental plates incur. So rest assured that all is well, even if your body parts are trying to convince you otherwise.

As usual, this is only growing pain, in the most literal way, and even if the sharpness of the pain can seem to signal something else, this is not harmful at all. Rather, take it as another sign of stepping into your new self, both in a mental and physical way, and as always, the physical part of you is the one that needs more time to adjust. It is also the part that will protest the loudest, because it has been in so many ways "trained" to avoid any changes at all. But now, it too must literally suffer the consequences of this constant flux of energies, and as such, it will again moan and groan, and we venture to guess that these protests have been louder than usual these last few days.

We will not give you any "finishing date" on this process as usual, but we will again repeat the fact that the louder the response from your body, the more thorough this process usually is. In other words, do not feel down because of these "adjustment pains", but let them come and go, and think of it as another step taken towards that oft-mentioned finishing line. As we have said so many times now, as you approach that line, the pressure will certainly mount, and so too the effects on your physical body at times. Just breathe into it, and do not go into fear and think that anything is amiss. You are being reconstructed according to the original blueprint, and when you see the finished result, you will all agree that it was worth every painful moment along the way.

---

174

First of all, let us just say that today will be an important day in many people's life, as today will signal the start of another important inducement of energy. It will not be apparent at first, but the underlying current of this transformational energy is of such a magnitude it will literally blast off the covers of all the hidden layers of untruth still lingering in the corners of mankind. We talk in riddles, as always, but trust us when we say that this seemingly quiet morning will soon take on a life on its own, and soon the undercurrents will become visible to all. Much has been done to restore the future of mankind, but still much has been left untouched. It will not be so for long, as the powers that will be unleashed very soon will enable a total reassessment of everything.

You see, so much has been kept hidden from the eyes of the citizens of this little planet, as the powers that rules over you have had so many benefits from this charade they have been playing out. You have only seen the tip of the proverbial iceberg in the goings on around you, but that is to be forever changed by events that will literally turn the light on in even the darkest corners of your homes. This will not be an undramatic event of course, and many will fear the consequences of all of this disclosure, to call it that. But just as an infected wound needs to be exposed to clean air and sunlight to be cleansed, so too your civilization needs to face its innermost, deepest and horribly infected wounds in order to rinse out the particles of miasma collected there before becoming whole again. The process in itself is never a comfortable one, but it is indeed vital. Otherwise, the corruption will never cease, and the wound will never heal.

So stay calm sweet ones, and witness as the first rays of light touches that inner sanctum in all of mankind, and starts to work its magic on all of the suppuration that has been kept hidden for so long. Time has come to literally let the light and air into the most densest and darkest of corners, and remember that those who seek the dark will put up a mighty fight indeed once they see that their favourite hiding place has been discovered. For a fox trapped in a corner will fight viciously while trying to find an escape route. So too these cunning foxes that have made your planet their own hunting ground. They will not give in lightly, but we will not give them any chance to slip away under the cover of darkness. They will be flushed out of their hiding holes, and with them, all traces of the infection they carried to this planet in the first place.

The cleaning is about to start, so do not get surprised if your feet get a little wet in the process. As long as you keep your head above the waterline and face the light, all will be well. But those that desperately try to dive back down into the darkest caves will be innundated with the lifeforce coming in, and they will not make it to the "safety" of their old hiding places before the force of this cleansing tide literally flushes them out into the open again.

---

175

The sun is once again giving freely of her wonderful gifts, and even if they might not feel like gifts as you receive them, these injections will all turn out to be just that, glorious gifts of energy and freedom. As always, the insertion will have your body up in arms in many instances, as these powerful harbingers of change push so much unnecessary dross out of the way to take its place inside of you. And as usual, these upsets and upheavals leave their mark on you for a few days before everything settles into a new groove again. You are all well versed in these effects by now, but still it is indeed necessary to keep reminding yourselves that even though the process in itself never seems to become something you cherish, it is worth it all the while. So stay calm, even when your body seems to be going into overdrive, and breathe deeply to release all of the things that need to be released in order to refill yourselves with the purest of energies coming in.

---

176

As the days go by and everything seems to be oh so slowly turning on its head, so much of what you take for granted has to be let go of, like grains of sand running through your fingers. This process will be a very thorough one, but for most of you, it also seems to be an almost unbearably slow one. But remember, you are actually changing completely, literally from the inside out, and as you still have to inhabit this physical body in order to accomplish what you came here to do, this body also needs time in order to complete this process. So, lest you should literally fall into pieces, you need to be kept at the right timing for this metamorphosis, and even if your patience and mayhaps temper is running short by now, understand that this is in fact going incredibly fast, and the pace could not be speeded up more than it has already.

In addition to this, you cannot begin to comprehend all of the monumental changes you have completed already, as so little is indeed visible on the surface. To you, you seem to be looking at the same physical countenance every time you face yourself in a mirror, but to us, you literally sing to a very different tune to the one you used to emit earlier on. Then, you were only like a sad whisper shimmering in the woods. Now, you are like the mighty lion's roar, and we are all in awe of your powerful presence.

Soon, the rest of the world will have to sit up and listen too, because soon, you will all unleash your newfangled powers and stand tall and proud, announcing your presence here to anyone and everything. For you will not be kept long under wraps dear ones, and as this long-winded process is finally getting near completion, so too you. So get ready to exercise that voice, dear ones, for it is the voice of reason and the voice of joy, and get ready to sing at the top of that new voice, and join the choirs already singing the praise of the Multiverse.

---

177

As the sun passes over the horizon, the energies are picking up speed yet again, and you will all be feeling this in your bodies as the time for another injection of these new levels of understanding and information is drawing near. This will in many ways be a very different round than the usual ones, and so it will manifest in very different ways in each and very one of you. Please remember to not feel "left out" even if you do not have any direct sensation of this new upload, as this does not in any way imply that you are not part of this process. It only means that you have a slightly different set-up, and as always, you are all being given individual doses tailored to fit your special needs. We know it is difficult, but it is important not to compare yourselves to others, as this is not a competition, but a process of integrating and adjusting that is unique to each and every one of you.

Again, the effects from this new round of energies will indeed vary, but they might be more forceful than usual, so please stay tuned to your own body and make sure that you give it what it needs in order to be able to stay balanced throughout this. So feed it well, and give it the rest or the exercise it needs in order to keep these energies moving and not getting stuck somewhere in your system. We know you are becoming very adept at this already, but we will remind you of it every time, because otherwise you might become trapped in the symptoms as it were and forget that this process is all about advancing forwards, not about feeling stuck inside another bout of physical discomfort and mental fatigue. So stay tuned and stay safe.

---

178

Let us first begin this missive by saying that as we give you these words, there are so many out there still struggling from the outcome of this last implant of energy, and we have to say that although you might well feel more than a little under the weather, you are all significantly stronger than you perhaps think at the moment. Let us explain.

As we were saying beforehand, this bout of uplifting energies would in all probability make you feel less so, as they would have a very harsh effect on your physical body, so we venture to guess that this will have manifested in so many ways in each and every one of you. And as always, being subjected to these distressing symptoms in your physical body will make it less easy to really get an insight into what the real effects on you are. So that is why we will be on hand to help you see this better. As always, the bigger the dosage the larger the symptoms, and so too this time, as the increments have certainly magnified since the last round of adjustments. Many of you will start to think "will this never be over, and when will I be able to function as "normal" over a longer period of time?". Well, let us just say that although you have by no means completed this obstacle course just yet, you will certainly more than see the light at the end of the tunnel in a not too distant future. We hear the groans of despair already, so we hasten to assure you all that this time period we refer to here is actually much shorter than you mayhaps think. But again, we will as always refrain from giving you any exact dates, as this is never done because this is indeed a process that is constantly in flux.

In addition, you will have to be very patient with yourselves still, as your physical body will always seem to find a reason to complain whenever a new wave of "correctional energy" to call it that slams into it. That is because the level of intensity is raised successively, and whenever you have adjusted to a new level, it is literally time to be adjusted yet again. Much like those people who volunteer to go through a seemingly endless cycle of operations in order to lengthen the bones of their legs because they want to literally attain new heights, so too will you be constantly bombarded with new procedures that will literally open the "wound" as it were as soon as your physical body has "healed" the old one. We use these quotation marks here to underscore the fact that we are not referring to literal wounds in this, we are only referring to the fact that your body needs to take this literally one step at the time, and as soon as it has managed to ingest this bout of "growth hormones" to call it that, it will be ready, if rather unwilling, to ingest a new one.

We are aware that this cycle of growth feels very exhausting, but again, it is not harmful in any way, except maybe to your patience. So once again we ask you to connect to your inner sanctum, and you will find the courage and determination you need in order to reassure yourselves that you are not about to give up anytime soon. We stand beside you and marvel at the fact that your strength keep shining through no matter how exhausted your physical body becomes, and as such, you are certainly more than shining examples to us all. You are growing so fast now, it is not unnatural that the growing pains are increasing also, so rest assured that although you may feel ready for the scrapheap at the moment, you could not be in more "mint condition" than you are now. After all, you have gone through a new cycle of total renewal once again, so even if you yourselves feel that something will have to give, it will not do so unless you literally give up on yourself. There is certainly no need to do that, but again, we do understand those unable to see their own glory in the midst of these furious storms crashing into you over and over again.

You are stronger than the strongest of trees who manage to outlast centuries of gale force winds, and your roots are even deeper, so you will not topple and fall no matter how hard the winds will be blowing in the time ahead. You will be left standing when those less able to connect will literally be ripped out from the soil, and that is only because they have voluntarily severed their own roots. You have not. In fact, you have literally sent down even deeper roots in such a way that you have ensured a safe grounding within this soil, and this will indeed hold you in good stead as the winds will only increase as the storm once again gathers off your shores.

So do not be afraid dear ones, even if you feel almost unable to stand up by now. You are in fact standing tall and strong, and we can see it, and we admire you all for this ongoing tenacity. So do not think you are but small saplings, unsure of your hold on this soil. You are mighty trees, and your roots and your crowns match perfectly. In other words, not only have you grown below and increased your own foundation, you have also stretched out much further above, so now you are literally embracing much more of Creation than ever before. We embrace you back, brothers and sisters, and we invite you all to keep growing, because you have not reached your limit yet.

---

179

Today we would like to touch further upon the subject of time travel to call it that, as we have many insights into this that might help you all in the time ahead. For centuries, mankind have been playing around with the idea of moving back and forth between the ages, and you have also made many a fictional story about that, so we guess you are all familiar with the concept in some way. However, as this is a subject that is apt to confuse many, we would also like to point out the fact that time is not the same for us as it is for you. As we have touched upon so many times earlier, time for you is a single layer, spreading out in two directions, and it is only possible to "navigate" it to call it that by staying alive and literally follow the clock.

In other words, time is a parameter that will unfold at a given speed, and everything that has happened has been "recorded" on this timeline as a memory, and cannot be erased. However, to us, time is a very complex being, and we use that word with intent, as to us, time is indeed like a living breathing entity, something that is malleable and forever in flux. In other words, time can literally take you anywhere you want to go, as it can be used almost as a "magic carpet" from your stories to bring you to a chosen destination. In addition, there are multiple layers of time, and they are forever changing shape and direction, and as such, nothing is ever "written in stone" as you see it. To us, time is but a instrument to be used in order to achieve more insight and clarity, and therefore, it is perhaps the most valuable and effective instrument there is. So to us, time is like an unending source of possibilities, whereas to you, time is like a straightjacket that holds you in a vice-like grip. You see yourselves as slaves to time, and rightly so, as you have no way of escaping the inevitability of literally running out of time. In other words, to you, you can only count the time from the moment you take your first breath and to the moment you take your last. Everything that happens between those two moments are the only "time" you are given, and therefore, the fear of dying is very strong in you all. For when you die, you run out of time, and there is nothing more you can ever achieve in your life. In addition, many also carry the firm belief that they only get this one try at it, and therefore the fear of losing out will be even bigger.

But as to us, time is an endless source of opportunities, and as such, we do not carry the imprint of fear that you have. We know that we are not allotted a specified amount of time, and we do not need to fear that we will ever run out of time. We know that we are eternal, and for us, time is like a river, or an ocean where we can maneuver at will, and where we go to gather new experiences in order to grow even further. So we go into this great ocean of time, and we take a little sip, or we immerse ourselves fully in it. And from this ocean of time, we take with us the opportunities ready to be manifested that is already in situ, and we literally play around with them. We are in many ways like children, searching around for new opportunities to play, not only with new things, but with other souls, and as such, we are constantly being exposed to an endless variety of events that will literally broaden our horizons. And these horizons will continue to broaden for as long as we like, because we know that we are but a small part of an endless cycle of time and space, and we will continue to be a part of this cycle for ever. We do not need to think about fearing death, because to us, death is not an ending, it is a transition into the next phase of this cycle, and we will once again cast ourselves into this ocean of time to continue our search for knowledge.

We know this will sound very confusing and almost incomprehensible, because to you, time is such a concrete concept. It is not something you can play around with, it is something that you need to heed, and as such, the ticking of the clock will always be a reminder that you will some day lose that fight with time, and you will have to stop being part of that counting down and stop being in existence at all. But trust us when we say that this prison is just something that has been created in the minds of mankind, and you are no more trapped inside this cage of linear time than we are. You just THINK you are, and you have been made to think so by those creatures who decided to put you inside that cage for their own benefit. You are just as free as us, and now you will start to savour the taste of that freedom. In fact, you have already started to take those first swimming lessons in this ocean of time, but as they take place in a state where you are not fully awake and lucid, the imprint from these outings will not be clear to you yet. But they will be, and then you will suddenly feel how this notion of linear times literally loses its grip on you completely. Then you will understand that you are already jumping back and forth and sideways, to call it that, but as you might understand, direction is also just something that you still need as a tool to understand these things. You do not go "back" in time, you just shift over to a different timeline, and the same thing when going forwards into the "future". There is no such thing as "past" and "future", as they are all playing out simultaneously, so to us, there is no distinction between the two.

We have told you earlier that you are in fact from "the future", and that is true, as you are originally beings that also exists in a timeframe that a human mind would describe as being thousands of years ahead of the time you count as "now". But to us, every time can count as ""now", so therefore we do not need to think about things like "yesterday or "tomorrow." It is all coexisting in this continuum of time and space, and therefore it is accessible to all whenever you need to access it. We know this will perhaps confuse you even further, but to us, this comes as naturally as taking a breath does to you. Remember, this is something that has been laid down as a fundamental rule for All of creation, therefore it is something that is ingrained in us all, so too in you. The only difference is that you have been separated from this natural instinct, to call it that, so therefore you will have a hard time to comprehend it at this stage.

"Will this not ensure total chaos and confusion" we hear you ask, as to you, this will only lead to more possibilities of people misusing this in order to fulfill their own greedy needs. No, the answer is clearly and simply, because underneath it all, there is the simple rule that this cannot be misused in such a way, because there are no leeways for those trying to foster more fear by misusing this endless supply of energy. For energy is what it really is, and as such, this energy has been safeguarded in such a way that it will be made null and void if it is corrupted in any way.

Hence the story of your little planet. You are an example of this corruption, as you have been literally colonized by beings that have set up an elaborate operation in order to live out their unbalanced desires. Now the time has come – literally – to undo all of that by neutralizing them. And the way to do just that, is to disconnect them from this grid they have created that has been superimposed upon the existing one. In other words, disconnect them from the source that they have been misusing. "Well, what took you so long", we hear you ask, and as usual we must answer that time is indeed a concept that is very different from the one you use, and as such, the story of mankind is not counted in the same way in the rest of Creation as it is in your annals. In other words, this process is both a very, very long one, but also an instantaneous one, as time is something that can bend and wrap and meander. We know this will elicit groans of irritation, so we hasten to add that you have not been left hanging there as it were for mere amusement or curiosity from the rest of us. As we have touched upon earlier, this is a process that has been carefully planned, and as such, it goes back to the dawn of humanity. And we do mean that in every sense of the word, as you as a species go "back" even further than what is common knowledge amongst you today.

We will not go into details on this subject just yet, as then this missive would become so much more lengthy than it already is, so take this as a small fragment of what is to come. Because there is not only an ocean of time out there, ready and waiting for you to take those longed for deep dives into, there is also that even vaster ocean of knowledge waiting for you, and these oceans are indeed the one and the same. So lest you should become too tired and confused after reading this lengthy missive, let us just say that this is only meant as a small appetizer, something to prick up your curiosity for what is yet to come. And even if this leaves you with more questions than answers, we think you will in some ways be touched by these words and the energies they contain in such a way that it will start to open some doors inside you all that have been sealed off for ages. We will leave you to ponder this, as we promise yet again to return with more when the time is right. That is all for now, we leave.

---

180

The topic of time is something we would like to discuss further, as this is mayhaps the most important factor that separates a so-called "normal" human being from the awakened one. For as you slowly start to regain your footing in your old, higher levels of energy, you will also encounter the somewhat bewildering experience of time in flux. In other words, the time and space continuum will start to behave in very unexpected ways for you, and you will at times have a hard time keeping track of it all. You are used to a slow and steady rhythm of time, where everything seems to be slowly unfolding, and where the speed is constant. Not so any more, as you are literally being swept back and forth on the waves of a different timeline that does not move like as on a fixed track, but more like a river that finds its way along a very varied landscape. So at times, it will be like everything is creeping along almost unbearably slow, like water moving over an almost level ground, while at other times, it will be just like going over the precipice of a high cliff and then ending up churning around in a backwater. In other words, what was once a guaranteed stable factor of your life, will turn into perhaps the most volatile and changing one, and with it, many new challenges will follow.

As we have mentioned earlier, this is a subject that is difficult to comprehend for you all, as it has been something you did not even need to think about as it was such a rigid structure that you could literally navigate after it. But now, time will turn into something that will help you and challenge you in so many ways. We will leave it at that for now, but we will return to this subject in many upcoming messages. That is all for now, we leave.

---