

Part 31

The subject we are speaking of today, is a very interesting one indeed, as we would like to give you some information concerning that fragile layer protecting your planet, and how changes in this layer is already affecting you all. We refer of course to the so-called atmosphere, this thin membrane that separates you from the vastness of space as it were, much like the embryonic sac protects an unborn child. Without it, you would not be here, and as such any action that might damage this could create havoc for all of the living beings currently inhabiting your earth. Most of you are aware that this has already been damaged thanks to that infamous cocktail of chemicals you have been spewing out for decades, and as such it seems that you have opened yourselves up to much interference from outside sources, but not all of this will be considered as detrimental to you.

Let us explain. Your atmosphere not only keeps all of your vital gaseous substances inside, so that you are literally able to breathe in the oxygen your bodies crave, it is also protecting you from most of all of those not so benign particles floating about in space. In other words, you have a sort of umbrella over your heads protecting you from the worst of these fallouts emanating from all sorts of processes going on out in space. In addition, it acts as a shield that deters most of those free-floating objects you refer to as meteors from entering your space. Most of them burn up before hitting the ground, often times putting up beautiful displays of fireworks as they disintegrate. The earth's atmosphere is mostly invisible to the naked eye, except when these fireballs enter it, or when it is lit up by the displays created by all of those electromagnetic storms hurled out from your friendly neighbour the sun. They go by the name of auroras, and are a stupendous sight indeed.

Lately, these beautiful displays have increased in magnitude, and they will continue to do so in the upcoming period, as they are indeed the most visible part of this ongoing reprogramming project. The colors washing over the sky is but a tiny part of this accelerated influx of particles however, and we would like to go into some detail concerning those not so visible, but very, very powerful little missiles coming your way.

As we have already told you, those elusive but powerful particles going by the name of neutrinos are only one of the of these new harbingers of change that your scientist have yet to discover, but they have started to see signs of some of their brothers and sisters if we may call it that, and what they are starting to see is very, very interesting. For many years, they have designed a model on how your earth's atmosphere behaves whenever it is struck by one of those outwardly blasts of energy that comes mainly from the sun, but now they are starting to see new and disturbing patterns, and they will soon realize that all of their calculations need to be recalibrated.

The reason for this is partly because the stream of incoming energy is changing in so many ways, both in frequency and in mass, but also because the set-up of your atmosphere is changing ever so slightly. On the surface, it might not seem to be dramatic, but the effects of this change will be dramatic indeed. As we have told you earlier, many of these particles can penetrate anything, seemingly without effort, and as such they have no problem penetrating that protective layer already. When they do so, they set off a chain reaction that actually engenders a totally new layer of particles, one that will help you to prosper from not only the current influxes, but also all of those coming in at a later date.

Let us give you some details on this, as it might be hard to understand in all of its complexity. Human beings are a carbon based creature, or have been up until now. The rapid changes going on at cellular level in your bodies are actually turning you into something else, namely a silica-based crystalline being, one that is perfectly tuned to receive signals from off-planet sources. This will make you all into powerful antennae, much more powerful than you already are, and as such you will be able to join in that universal choir singing the songs of the multiverse.

This may sound strange, but this is indeed vital for your further development on this planet, as you can no longer keep living "offline" as it were from the rest of creation. As we have already stated, everything and everyone in creation is linked together through that all-encompassing network of energy permeating everything, everything that is, except you, but now that you are being reborn as pure crystalline beings, your surrounding needs to be adapted to that way of living in a connected environment.

As we have repeated on numerous occasion, your current grid has been put into place in order to hide you from the rest of us – or rather to hide us from you – and as such the reception on your planet has been very feeble indeed compared to where the rest of us lives. It can in fact be compared to living in a very, very remote area, where you have a hard time finding any clear stations on your radio, where most of what you hear is background noise. That is how it has been on your planet, but now that not only you but also your atmosphere is being literally rewired, the reception will be loud and clear indeed. So if you think that these last downloads have been powerful, think again. They will be nothing compared to what you have in store once both you and this "antennagrid" has been upgraded to the premium.

Do not think that your physical body will have an even harder time being at the receiving end of so much energy, because by then you will all be literally so streamlined and pure that this information will go straight through you without much fanfare at all. In other words, the going will be much, much easier once this whole system has been set up, and as such you will be able to evolve at a much more rapid speed than the current, somewhat sluggish pace you are able to withstand. This will be good news indeed, for this will in fact put you at par with the rest of us, and as such a future success is indeed guaranteed. You will in other words finally be free from this shield that has been averting your eyes from the most important discovery you will ever make, namely the fact that you are indeed a full member of the universal family, and as such both your powers and your rights will finally be restored to you.

But in order to get there, we must not only modify your physical bodies, but also your physical surroundings, and therefore your atmosphere will go through many changes. Some of them have already occurred, and your scientists have already seen so much hitherto unknown atmospheric phenomena playing out. But stay tuned for more, it will be a great show literally unfolding in front of your very eyes. Look to the sky, it is indeed where all the change is coming from, and now the time has come to fire up the most impressive display ever seen by human eyes.

Part 32

Chapter 23

On the effects of the incoming sunstorms and other current influxes into your environment.

This part will go into more details concerning the recent atmospheric happenings, and also a preview into what you have in store in this upcoming period. We are aware that there is much information on this subject in circulation already, but we would like to take this opportunity to clarify some of it. As have been stated already, your little planet is currently in the process of receiving massive amounts of energy and information, and all of this comes from a source considerably distant from your own planet. Some of it emanates from your friendly neighbour the sun, but much of it has a totally different origin altogether. Some of it will come in short bursts, while other emissions will be transmitted to you over a prolonged period. The combined effect of all of these emissions is a very profound one indeed, and nothing on this planet of yours will go unmarked by all of this heavy inoculation of information.

Those of you that are of the sensitive kind will have felt the effects from all of these bombardements already, as these inserts will certainly make a loud impact on your physical bodies in more ways than one.

Let us explain. As you might already be aware of, the deprogramming and reconstruction of your physical vehicle has been going on for a quite some time already, much to the consternation of that forementioned vehicle. At times it will be in uproar, because it cannot fathom the altered energypatterns it is imbued with, and therefore reacts by sounding off one alarm after the other. Hence, the multitude of physical symptoms masquerading as all sorts of ailments, aches and pains.

We hasten to add that this is of course mainly false alarms, although there are those out there currently struggling with real symptoms of physical illness, and in some cases these have been triggered by these influxes. To be explicit, they are not caused by these energywaves, only triggered by them, as in these cases the body had a previous but dormant frailty in it's set up, and this imbalance has been brought into the open to be adressed once and for all. This is because in order to remake you all in the much stronger mould of a crystal body, all hidden flaws must and will be adressed before your structure can be reset as it were. For some, this will entail some drastic measures, but for the larger majority there will only be various degrees of discomfort associated with this process.

As we have touched upon earlier, all of the signals for this "rebuilding process" comes from an external source, and although you have been through much of these alterations already, there are still tweaks and adjustments that needs to be completed over the next few days and weeks. We could almost refer to it as cramming before an exam, because there is still a whole host of information that needs to be programmed into your system in order for it to be ready by the time that the whole turnaround of your globe will be put into effect.

This day is not far off now, therefore we have come to prepare you for some very intense procedures in the very near future. As you are all individually set up in order to be able to perform at the highest level whatever your function in this plan is, you will all experience these new downloads in a myriad of ways, so we will not go into details as this will only serve to confuse you. Remember, this is a process carefully tailored to serve the needs of each and every one of you, therefore it will be futile to compare your own process to that of another going through the same upgrading.

Do not think that you are failing in any way if you do not experience anything that others might refer to. You are all unique in one way or the other, therefore you will all have your own unique journey on this, your last stage of the ascension process. We stress this because there are so many of you out there in need of this sort of reassurance, and understandably so. Again, this is a process never before taken on by anyone trapped inside a physical body such as yours, so you are all on a solitary journey into the unknown, but again, rest assured that this is indeed a very, very safe and protected journey, and you are all closely monitored throughout it so that no harm shall befall you from these energies.

As we were saying, this upcoming period will be intense indeed, as the array of unusual particles penetrating your atmosphere will multiply manifold. This will not only herald the final stage of your metamorphosis, but also the end of the current world order you are surrounded by on all sides. Remember, out of the ashes a new world will be born, one that will make the hearts sing in anyone left standing after this intense rebirthingprocess. We see you now, safely ensconced inside your cocoons, wriggling in anticipation to get out, but at the same time trying to stop the inevitable. That is not hard to understand, as this metamorphosis process heralds the death of everything you have taken for granted, not only in your personal life, but also to the rest of the illusion you are currently immersed in.

There is nothing the human species fears more than change, even when the change will be for the better, and that is because you have been programmed this way. Remember, from the outset you were a glorious species, all set up to evolve in any way you could, rejoicing in every step you took into a new and unknown territory. But after the fall, in order to ensure your obedience, you were programmed to be a meek flock, one that would avoid at any cost to stray outside the defined boundaries. Such a flock is very, very easy to control, you only have to instill in them the certainty that outside the fences, danger is all around, and this fear of the unknown has kept you in check for thousands of years.

Now, a few brave souls have picked up their courage and scurried under the fence, and to their amazement the world outside is anything but fear-filled. Rather, it is a space in which love and joy pervades, and where you are all received with open arms by those invisible, friendly neighbours you were told were lurking menacingly in the shadows waiting to strike you down. Those few pioneers have been joined by thousands upon thousands of other brave souls like you, and now the number of people walking in the bright daylight far removed from those eternal shadows whence they came from have multiplied beyond control. Soon the fences will be torn down once and for all, and the rest of humanity will have the chance to go out into the open as well.

Many will choose not to, as their fear of the unknown is so strong they will scurry away trying to find a small, dark spot to hide in. That is their choice, and they will get exactly what they want. The rest of you will rejoice in the fact that darkness will be abolished once and for all from the green pastures you will continue to frolic on, and never fear for the lack of others to share this joyful new life with. They will be many, and not only other fellow human beings. Now, you will finally be part of that colorful flock that compose the rest of creation, and as such your new world will be a totally new one from the old one left to wither and die in the darkest corner of the multiverse.

So remember, as the temperature rises considerably in these next few weeks, and the flurry of activities seems almost too much to bear, rest your heart in the knowledge that you are heading for this wonderful paradise, where happiness will once more be your birthright, and fear and sorrow will only be fading memories of your past existence.

Part 33

This next installment will go into closer details concerning the changes that are about to occur, and also how they will occur.

You are about to go through such a profound turnaround in your world, and as we have already said on numerous occasions, there will not be much left of what you today take for granted. Many have a hard time understanding just how these radical changes can come about, and the recurring question on everyone's mind is how long will it take. You are by now well informed that your concept of time is something you need to start letting go of, as this is only hampering your welcome into the new tomorrow. You have it so ingrained into your system, therefore you have a hard time believing that pulling your so very skewed world into a completely new direction is too much to even think about accomplishing in your lifetime, maybe even that of your children.

Again, this is something that needs to be accomplished in a much, much shorter timespan than that, as you as a species will not be capable of surviving in the world you are currently creating. You are too self-destructive for that, and as such time is indeed more than short. But on the other hand, as we have a totally different way of approaching the question of time altogether, we are not overly concerned about any lack of time. Far from it. We know that we have all the time in the world to accomplish this, as we have the ability to free us from the restrictions of a timeline altogether.

You, on the other hand, need to be aware that you are in fact running out of time, because if you want to join this salvage-operation, you do not have any time left to dither. In other words, no stragglers will be allowed, and we do not take on those arriving after the gate has been closed so to speak. However, we are more than confident that those of you reading this have already made much of your preparations, and you are already sitting with your boarding cards ready, eager to embark upon the journey of your lives.

Yes, we do intend to use the plural here, as everything you have ever done in your previous incarnations on this planet has had this as the end goal. No second has been wasted, even if you feel that you have spent much of this and what you may remember from previous lives struggling to get by. Now the time has come to look back for one final time, before you step aboard that express heading for tomorrow. And what a tomorrow it will be! Believe us when we say that everything that have been grating on you will finally disappear, and you will all finally be able to take that first breath of clean air. Not only that, you will also see that everyone around you are crying tears of joy as they behold the miracle lying before them.

We do not speak in idle words here, as the aftermath of this mayhaps rather dramatic rebirthing will be more than wondrous indeed. Remember, you have been bred to expect less from life than anyone else living in this multiverse, and so things we take for granted will take you by storm as it were. In other words, no more tears of sorrow, as fear, lack, brutality and poverty will all be left behind as soon as you enter you new world.

Do not take this lightly, as we are indeed talking about the new reality you are about to experience, and if it at times seems like nothing more than a pipedream, this is the reality everyone else but you are facing each and every morning. There is nothing we are looking more forward to than welcoming you to our reality, or rather, welcoming you back to the reality you once came from, as this is the only way to live. You have lived far too long under that burden the dark ones put upon you, but now the time has come to let it go once and for all.

Let us give you some details on this upcoming period. As you might be aware, there are heavenly fragments coming your way, that is, a fragment of something far, far larger is currently heading in your direction. This fragment has been given the name of Elenin, and although much has been heralded about this seemingly infinitesimal rock, not much about it has been true. Do not for a second believe those that say that this heralds the apocalypse or that it will herald the advent of stupendous destruction on this planet. Far from it. That is not what this little scout is heralding. Rather, this is only a small precursor of what is to come, but it will not come and go unnoticed in your neighbourhood.

On the surface, it might not look as much, but do not get fooled by the cover as it were. For this is indeed something so foreign to you, and nothing like it has ever graced your skies. What you are about to witness, is the arrival of something so momentous it would make you all stop in your tracks if you could see it from our perspective. As we have already stated, this multiverse is comprised of a matter your scientists refer to as "dark matter", or in other words a form of energy they cannot detect. What this little piece of seemingly crumbling substance is, is something that will help them see for themselves just what all of this so-called dark matter really is.

Dark matter is nothing more than information, and not only that, it is a living sort of information, not just cold, hard numbers like the ones you have stored on your computers. No, this is something much, much more advanced, and now the time has come for you to start communicating with this dark matter.

We predict that your scientists will be very, very baffled by the results they will be starting to see on their screens, as this little harbinger of change will make it's voice heard in so many ways on your little planet. And not only the scientists, those of you alert enough will certainly pick up the signals this little beacon of hope will start to transmit, and what you hear will certainly make your heart sing in more ways than one.

In addition, it will serve as a final wake-up call to those still fighting to come awake, and as such you will see many interesting results from this tiny fly-by. Just do not expect the mountains to crumble and fall into the sea, even if there might be a slight rumble and crunch emanating from mother earth herself as she welcomes this visitor from afar.

Never forget, something seemingly insignificant and unobtrusive sometimes carry a large punch, no matter how hard those at the top try to downplay the importance of any such event. We are aware of that small gathering of people, calling themselves the 99%. Watch how the media are trying to ridicule their movement, it is indeed a well proven way of trying to stop anyone bold enough to open their mouth and trying to get their voice heard above the din of blatant disinformation carried out all around you. Remember, these are only a few of the large mass of downtrodden peoples all over the globe, and just as they did in the arabic states, these downtrodden and seemingly meek spirits suddenly find their voices and start to shout out in encouragement to the rest of you. They are not many, but they are indeed very, very important, as they will soon manifest into something so much larger.

Never forget, those sitting complacently at the top, skimming off whatever they want from that mass of humanity are the minority, and as such their power over you is only an illusion. And now, that illusion is starting to crack as more and more of your fellow human beings are starting to see clearly through the haze and smoke generated by these oppressors of yours. Remember, an oppressor comes in many shapes and sizes, and not all of them carry a uniform. In fact, most of them look very civilized indeed, in their clean cut costumes of shirts, ties and jackets. But never forget, something sinister is indeed lurking behind that well-manicured facade, and now the beast will come out as they see for themselves just how slippery their hold on humanity really is.

As we mentioned earlier, that small and almost insignificant visitor in your skies is indeed a harbinger of enormous proportions, but as the actual size of it seems to have diminished considerably, so has your scientists interest waned in it as well, and as such it will be able to go under the radar as it were and deliver it's cargo unhindered. By that, we mean that the harmonics embedded in this tiny little roaming spirit is of such a magnitude, it will be able to blast through any kind of noise trying to shield it out, but as your self-appointed guards have redirected their interest, the effects from this broadcast will be even better than we had planned. It might not look much on the outside, but we defy anyone who thinks that this tiny ball of spacedust is without any effect on your small planet at all. Think again, as it is indeed ready to let it's voice be heard in a many an unsuspecting ear in the days ahead. Be still, and you will be amongst those fortunate enough to detect it's message through the statics of the ever-present noise generated by those trying to keep you down.

Part 34

Chapter 24

A more detailed description on upcoming events.

You have by now gotten more used to these periodic downloads of energies, and this will indeed hold you in good stead in these upcoming days and weeks. Although this process will often seem to be less than pleasant, keep in mind that everything we do to you during this process is to make sure that you will all come out of this as far, far stronger than you have ever been before, or rather than you have ever experienced in a human body. The process in itself may be exhausting, even tedious at times, but never forget that ultimate goal of attaining the body of a sacred crystalline nature, the one that will carry you all into eternity and beyond.

Let us explain. By now, you have all felt the onslaughts from all of these recent energy updates on your seemingly frail bodies, and as such you might ask yourselves what good might come out of this at times very, very draining process. Some of you have already lost hope in that seemingly elusive day of regaining your powers, but let us just assure you all that this day is actually so much closer than you think. In other words, you can almost see that longed for finishing line just ahead of you, and although the last hill towards it might seem to be on the steep side, never lose hope in your abilities to get you there in the very near future.

This is so important, because if you lose that hope, we cannot force you to continue towards the completion of this process. It is like the old saying that you can lead a horse to water, but you cannot force it to drink, and as you have all gotten mightily thirsty by now, we hope you all see the sense of keeping yourselves moving forwards on this, the final stretch, even if it means moving your feet only a fraction of an inch at the time. We will repeat this, as it is indeed all up to you to choose to cross that finishing line or not, and even if we might support you and encourage you all we can, the final decision rests with you, dear souls. That is your choice, but that is also your only choice in this matter, as you cannot choose neither the intensity nor the pace in this, the final assault. In other words, consider this as a friendly warning that the days ahead will be intense indeed, as there are still so much information needed to be downloaded into your bodies. And time is short remember, not for us, but for you, and as such time waits for no one.

Again, we think you will find that the hard work you are about to embark upon will seem to be more than worth it when you see the final results, but we would like you to be very aware of the fact that at times the work might seem to be more than you are capable of taking on. Rest assured that you will not be burdened by more than you can bear, and we have all the information we need to be able to deduce just how much you can take on.

Remember, although this period will be perceived as an intense one for you all, the intensity will vary according to your own personal set-up. We have explained before that you have all individual roads to travel towards that final goal, and you best keep this in mind as the days advances towards that jubilant day. This is because even if you might feel reassured by the fact that you are not alone in fighting this final battle with your own strength and willingness to continue, you must keep in mind that no-one is going through exactly the same as you. Therefore, do not lose faith even if your journey differs from those around you travelling in the same direction. We have touched upon this subject before, but now this will be more important than ever. Remember, you cannot do anything wrong, except going into fear. That will mean losing your way altogether, but anything else is fine, no matter how different you perceive yourself from all others during this process.

As the days progress, so will the intensity of these upgradings, so best be prepared for some moments of uncertainty. Not because you need to have any doubt whatsoever as to where this process is going, but because you will experience reactions that may be very new to you indeed. What we mean by this, is that in order to get your physical body ready for that final assault for the finishing line, there might be some actions we need to take that may seem to be very strange indeed.

As you might already be aware of, most of these complicated procedures occur while you are in your sleepstate, and even if some of these rather abrupt and intense interventions in your body may leave a lingering memory of some sort in your mind, some of you may experience strange goings-on in your body while you are more or less fully awake. We say this not to frighten you, just to prepare you for the possibility of undergoing something very unusual indeed. The reason for this is very simple. As we have already told you on numerous occasions, your whole physical body is literally being rewired, and as this entails correcting the whole control mechanism for your physical body, this will have some noticeable effects on you even while you are awake and alert.

We cannot go into detail, as these will vary both in intensity and appearance according to your own personal set-up, but let us just give you a few examples of what might come about in these next few days so that you can be prepared if anything seemingly amiss befalls you. Just remember, it will be a normal reaction to this process if your body seems to be behaving strangely, but if you are in doubt, please feel free to seek advice from the medical community if that will put you at ease. Remember, going into fear is not something you would want to do at this stage, but if reassurance from a professional helps you to avoid that, do not hesitate to get it.

Back to that possible list of reactions you might or might not experience in these upcoming days. As we were saying, we are currently in the process of rewiring your whole nervous system, or in other words the controls for every process going on in your body. This encompasses not only the processes you are aware of, such as the moving of your body parts and the respiratory system, but also all of the more hidden communication going on inside of your body every second. So you can see, there might be a number of "distress signals" coming to the surface during this rewiring, but we hasten to add that although they might be perceived as odd, they are in fact nothing more than a small twitch in the command system as it were. Some of you might experience these twitches very literally, as one or more parts of your body will move or contract without reason, much like a muscular tick only perhaps a little stronger.

The senses might be affected in many ways as well, and you might be hearing recurring ringing noises, or see spots of color or darkness lingering in your eyesight. You might also have problems with focusing at times, and we predict that many of you will think that your eyesight is failing and needs to be corrected. We think you will find that these "problems" will disappear after only a few days, as it is only a minor and temporary inconvenience as your brain struggles a bit to adjust to these new signals as it were. Again, do not hesitate to seek advice from others if you feel so inclined, but we predict that by the time you get an appointment the aforementioned "problem" will have dissipated, or the specialist will fail to find anything wrong with you. As we were saying this will only be a temporary "miscommunication" as the old lines are disconnected and the new ones inserted.

There might also be some sensation of heaviness or stinging pain in parts of your body. Again, this is nothing to be worried about, and it should dissipate after a short while. Most of these more diffuse symptoms may be hard to pinpoint, as they will seem to be moving around in your body. Also, your neck and back or other parts of your bonestucture might be affected, and you will perhaps feel soreness in your muscles. It will in many ways be like soreness from exercising, but the effects come from these new eletric currents coursing through your body in these new wires, and as such your muscles may seem to be working overtime to adjust to these new signals. Again, this is only temporary, and it will also go away after a short while.

Much of these symptoms might be more than familiar to some if not all of you already, but we wanted to go into some detail concerning this as many of you will experience a considerably higher frequency and magnitude from these "side effects" in this upcoming period. As always, forewarned is forearmed, and we wanted you to be aware of this beforehand, so that the reason for them occuring is well understood. This will hopefully help you to handle them with ease should they occur anywhere in your own body in the next few days and weeks.

Never forget, you are monitored closely every step of this process, and although you at times might feel that you are trapped inside a body mayhaps behaving in bizarre ways, do not fear for the integrity of your body. It is and will be stronger than you could ever have hoped for, and once this process is finished you have something far more solid and long-lasting than you could ever dream of. We wish you all the best in the days ahead, and rest assured that even if it might not be the most comfortable period for you, it will be amongst the more important ones. Just hang in there as they say, and know that all is well no matter how hard your body tries to tell you otherwise.

Part 35

Today we would like to address a different topic altogether, namely that of the imminent arrival of outside forces if we may use such a metaphor. Rest assured that we do not in fact refer to "forces" in any negative way, far from it, rather it is an esoteric form of force we imply by this. In other words, we would like to delve more into the nature of these energies currently encircling your globe, and how they will affect you all in these upcoming days and weeks. We have touched upon the effects these energies have had and will have on your physical body, now we would like focus on how it will affect your minds and how you perceive yourselves and the world around you.

As we have said so many times already, the human race has been under a spell for such a long time, and you have become accustomed to walking around with your eyes closed, almost like you are sleepwalking. But now the time has come to open not only your eyes, but also your hearts, and as this is not an easy task to accomplish, you will have much help from the outside. No, we do not refer to any kind of "brainwashing", although in many ways that is exactly what we are alluding to. Not the kind of brainwashing you have been exposed to before, where so much of your old repositories of intelligence, information and knowledge was literally washed away in order to render you helplessly in the powers of outside controllers of the dark kind. No, this is in fact a kind of "brainwash" if you will that will in fact remove all of the accumulated dirt and grime that have impaired your minds and souls to such an extent you have been left unable to think for yourselves. We think you will agree that this sort of "brainwash" is indeed a very, very benevolent and positive one, as it is done to restore your own powers, not to remove them as previously experienced by you all.

Many of you have been through this restorative "washing process" already, and therefore you are seeing the world in a very new light indeed. We venture that as a result you have already changed so much in your own life, and not only those outside factors regulating your everyday life, but also the most important one, namely that internal voice telling you how to evolve into an enlightened human being. Many of you have come a long, long way already, but there is still some distance to cover for the large majority, and now the "outside forces" we referred to at the beginning will offer you much assistance to close the gap as it were in a very short amount of time. No more waiting for a distant tomorrow, it has already arrived and will show itself in all of its beauty as the new day is about to dawn.

Let us explain. It will not be news to any of you that the constant barrage of external energy has heightened considerably these last few months and weeks, and now you stand before an even greater influx of light. This light will serve to light the way for so many of your fellow men, many of whom have up until now remained totally concealed in the shadows. Now this light will finally make them step out into the open for the very first time, and as such you will find yourself standing in a crowd where you previously only saw scattered souls here and there.

Rejoice in the fact that the tidal wave of human souls deciding to let go of the crippling grip of fear will increase exponentially, and as such the swells of change will rise above and beyond what any of you could have predicted only a short time ago. Look around you, and see that the signs are already out there for all to see. Yes, the 99% are finally starting to make their voices heard above the din of ridicule raining down upon them from those thinking themselves safely ensconced at the top. The harder they laugh, the more their lofty perch is shaking, and soon enough they will all take a tumble and fall off their throne of unrightful rule. It might not seem like much at the moment, but these seemingly spontaneous gatherings of peaceful protesters assembled in numerous cities across the globe are only a small fraction of the tide of peoples finally pushing the veils back and stepping out into the bright glare of truth. Not to destroy, but to take back what is rightfully theirs, namely their own sovereignty.

Many will use the occasion to display their basest behaviours, and grab a place in the spotlights while they literally steal and plunder in a fit of destructive rage, but they will only be a tiny fraction. The rest, or rather the real 99%, will show their true colours, and will stand together tall and proud and show their love not only for themselves but for all of those kindred spirits all around them. This network of kindred souls will find themselves connected to all others across the whole of your little planet, and for the first time ever in so-called modern times a real sense of community will be apparent to all. Not as a result of a global disaster, but as a result of global awakening. It will not happen tomorrow, but it will happen in a very, very short amount of time indeed, and no matter how hard the powers at the top will try to stem this flow, it cannot be stopped.

Never again will you bow your heads in servitude to those deeming themselves to be above and beyond reproach while they literally steal you blind. Once the scales fall away from your eyes, they can never be regrown, and as such liberty is not far off. We realize that these small scatterings of individuals might seem harmless and insignificant, but trust us when we say that they are only the forefront, or the tip of the iceberg.

Remember, the incoming storms of energy will only serve to heighten the speed of awakening, and as such this little snowball of change will grow rapidly into an all-encompassing avalanche that will smother those trying to hold back reason by waving the flag of fear. What once served to stop any argument will now show itself in its real light, namely that of manipulative and desperate measures meant to uphold status quo, and a status quo that will only benefit a small percentage of the population. Time is indeed running out for these despots, but that will not stop them from trying the best – or rather their worst – to stop this tide of fearlessness and freedom from washing over them and all that they hold dear. And make no mistake, they will not stop at anything. So best be prepared for some very intense and dramatic showdowns indeed, as they will rattle their swords any which way they can.

Rest assured that this time it is you who will have the last laugh, as you will all have awakened sufficiently not to fall for their rhetoric once again. Remember, you will have truth on your side, and all the powers of the multiverse as well, and this time you cannot fail. You will be armed with the best armor there is, namely that of self-empowerment, and the influxes coming your way will certainly make your armour less easy to penetrate. You will be tempered in this furnace of energies to the point of invincibility, and as such your oppressors' armament will no longer be able to harm you in any way ever again. Just remember, although the temperature will rise considerably over this upcoming period, it is with only one object in mind: namely that of rendering you untouchable by fear and greed, and as such ensure your victory over these forces once and for all.

Part 36

Today's missive will be a rather interesting discussion on how you will perceive these upcoming changes, as there will indeed be many ways to handle what's in store for you all. Let us explain. The human mind is a very malleable one, and as such it has been easy to restrict your views as it were. In other words, you have all had a sort of shield in your heads that have kept you from seeing the entirety of creation that surrounds you. You have in many ways been blind to the world, but as we have told you now the scales will fall away and you will finally see for yourselves just what a miracle you are part of.

But do not think that this will change everyone's outlook on the world, far from it. Remember, there will be many, many around you who actually will choose to keep their eyes closed to reality, and as such they will not be able to perceive what you are about to see. In other words, the population on this planet will in many aspects be split in two: those that embrace their new surroundings, and those that obstinately refuse to change their whole outlook on life.

Remember, with seeing comes remembering, and also a realization that you have up until now been living in an illusion, and not everyone will be able to handle that. In stead, they will go into denial, and they will refuse to have anything to do with this new reality. That will be their choice, and there is nothing you can do to change their minds. In other words, it is entirely up to each and every one of you to decide if you would like to join the real world as it were, or if you will prefer to linger in the old and crumbling one.

Make no mistake, those that choose the latter will have a hard time indeed, as they will continue to experience the darkest side of life in each and every aspect of their existence, and as such theirs will be a life filled with a mounting burden of fear. Whereas those of you who have chosen to step into the light, will finally find peace in your hearts and joy all around you. It might sound like a simple little fairytale from one your children's books, but this is in plain fact what will happen. Either you choose to open your eyes to the dawn of the new day, or you choose to stay in permanent darkness where the fear resides.

And now the time has come to make that choice, not only for you, but for the rest of humanity as well. Time is running out on that old order, and if you do not decide to open your eyes to this truth now, you will not get a second chance. Time waits for no one, and as we said we will not take up stragglers or wait for those dragging their feet not able to make up their minds. And not choosing is also choosing, as then you will stay put just were you are. In other words, this is a process were you all play the main role, and as such, it is entirely up to each and every one of you how you will react in this upcoming period.

Ascension is nothing you do by staying passive, it is a process were you and only you decide the outcome. Either you stay in fear, or you release the hold it has had on you for eons and eons, and remember that releasing something that has held you in it's firm grip for such a long time actually creates the feeling of fear. Again, you must keep your minds clear, because as you have all been well trained to fear change more than anything, this process will engender much fear in so many of you.

Never have anyone gone through such a life altering change as you are in the midst of now, and as such this process have already scared so many of your fellow travellers back into the dark corner from whence they came. Never forget, you are the bravest of the brave, and this final stretch of the metamorphosis into a totally new human being will entail such a vast amount of change it will stop many in their tracks and send them running in the opposite direction.

We do not say this to create more fear, but in order to reassure you all that this reaction is indeed nothing but natural, and if you see it for what it is, namely the last vestige of your old ego and programming trying to hold you back, it might be easier for you to break through that seemingly impenetrable wall of fear for the final time in this existence. Once you manage to do so, no fear can ever touch you again, and you will be able to hold on to the knowledge that you are in fact safely removed from the darkness that held you down in your former existence on this planet. We salute you all and wish you a safe journey, as you are to embark on this, the most important part of your journey towards the perpetual light.

We would like to continue in the same vein, namely that of going into further details concerning the imminent arrival of certain frequencies in your atmosphere and on the surface of your planet. By now, you are well on your way into the first of these barrages, and the fallout from all of these incoming energies have started to be felt all over your planet. We do not only refer to those recent events you may have witnessed in the media, such as the fall of another ancient dictator and the crumbling and upheaval of the earth's crust in certain places, but more specific into the turmoil starting to crop up inside many of your fellow human beings. So many of them are finally starting to open their eyes to the so-called "reality" surrounding them and found it lacking, and now they will all start to move in the direction of much wanted change.

Many of you will already have experienced this starting to happen to those around you, both those near and dear, but also amongst strangers you may encounter on your way. We urge you all to start noticing this now, as it will only be a small precursor to what is about to happen to the whole human race. As we have already stated, change is something not coming lightly to mankind, but now it will come as a tsunami washing all over your planet in a very, very short amount of time. So much will happen to so many in a very short time, it will indeed be a massive revolution going on in front of your very eyes.

The more perceptible of you will have encountered this already, whether in your workplace or in your own family, and it is indeed important to open your eyes and see these, the first signs of the revolution as they unfold right in front of you. If not, they may be easy to overlook, and as such the continued onslaught of bad news in your media and indeed the seemingly never-ending onslaught of energies hammering into your body will start many of you to lose the hope of a bright new tomorrow. We wish to emphasize this, as it is so easy to overlook this quickening of events in the seemingly never ending stream of dismal forecasts for the future of your planet, and we want you all to grab on to all of these glimmers of hope and bring them up in the minds of everyone you meet on your way. Remember, now is the time to make your voices heard, so that those still standing with their backs towards the light will be more compelled to turn around and see that dawn is indeed approaching even if the darkness seems to be creeping ever closer.

Your leaders are trying to resolve without much apparent success the crumbling foundations of the world of finance, and all around you the results from their failures are easy to see. People are being turned out on the streets in ever larger numbers, and all over the globe people are feeling their fear mounting by the day, much like the floodwaters currently covering so much of your globe. Desperation is rampant, therefore the voice of reason needs to be heard from the deep sea of humanity, and each and every one of you must try to find your voice and join that chorus. Look around you, and see for yourself just what the changes under this muddy surface really amounts to, and make sure to point them out to others not so fortunate as to see this clearly for themselves. Then stand back and see what this does. We defy anyone who thinks that mere words of enlightenment cannot make headway into a mind riddled with fear for the future. In so many cases, your words will be the small spark that ignites the cooling ember of hope lying dormant inside every one of your fellow human beings.

In addition, your actions will be seen as glowing examples for so many around you, and as long as you follow the voice of reason emanating from your heart, your steps will clear the way for so many stumbling alone in the darkness now. We implore you to lift your eyes and look towards the light, and as you set the course straight and true for this dawn even as darkness falls all around you, you will help so many others to follow on the path you are already clearing through the thorns trying to hold humanity back. You cannot even begin to understand how important your forward movement is, and we urge you all to keep going even when the going gets even more challenging in this upcoming period.

Remember, you are only the wayshower, not the sheperd, and as such this is your only task: focus on the light ahead, and remain confident that those that can, will follow you all the way. You are not in charge of herding them along, you are only charged with making certain that you get there yourselves. Then, the path laid down by you will be used by thousands and thousands of other feet, as the hearts of these followers have already been set ablaze by your courage and hope. And in order for you to keep your own heart blazing ever brighter, we again implore you to look even closer at the changes starting to occur all around you. See the glimmers of hope starting to be ever more visible in the eyes of your fellow human beings, and know that this is indeed as vital a fuel for your own blazing fire as anything bombarding you from the cosmos.

You are all starting to take those last but oh so important steps into the densest part of the jungle currently obscuring your final goal, so be sure to bring with you as much as you can of this life saving fuel. It will be sorely needed, and when the going gets tough, you will be able to rekindle the strength of your conviction no matter what the dark jungle is hiding. Do not take this lightly, as there are many brave souls out there already faltering. Remember the darkness is always most profound just before dawn, and so it will be this time too, but again, you have all the provisions you need to get you there, if you just remember to pack them with you as you set out on this, the final stretch of this arduous journey.

Part 38

Chapter 25

More on the after effects on the incoming tide of energies. Many of you are already aware that much is indeed changing even as we speak, but we do not think you are aware of the scope of the imminent changes. As we have oft repeated already, most of what you hold for true is in fact anything but, and as such not only your historybooks, but also your memorybanks needs to be rewritten after this procedure is completed. Nothing will be left to chance, and as such this reprogramming will be very, very thorough indeed.

Never fear for your sanity, even if so much will be turned on it's head, but this is also why we will repeat this message at frequent intervals in order to prepare you as best we can. Remember, no one and no thing will go untouched by what is about to take place on your planet, and as such you are amongst those lucky ones able to get some information beforehand. Just imagine how an "innocent bystander" still clinging to the illusion that what they see is what they get will fare once the veils are pulled back for everyone to see.

It will be a hard task indeed to keep one's sanity once everything they have staked their life on is exposed as nothing but smoke and mirrors. Remember, the latter ones are indeed in majority at the moment, but as we have already stated, this, the final run-up to the "final showdown" as it were involves so much extra prodding that we are quite confident that the number of awakened souls will increase exponentially in the very near future.

Again, as this is indeed a voluntary quest, we cannot force anyone to open their eyes against their will at this stage, but as soon as the old grid is disconnected, they will have no choice but to see everything in the full glare of the incoming light. Therefore, we predict that so many more of your fellow humans will have started to open their hearts of their own volition before they run out of time to do so. In the interim those of you already sufficiently awake will feel the full force of these barrages in more ways than one, and we do not think we put a foot wrong if we say that for many of you, this will be by far the most intense period you will ever experience. That is because although you have been well prepared for this by in some cases many years of previous experiences of these intelligent waves washing over you, none of you have ever encountered something even remotely as powerful as the ones starting to amass just off your shores.

Again, we do not say this in order to frighten you, but just to remind you to be prepared to be literally slammed into a wall of very, very intense energies, and they will at times seem to go on forever. They will not do so, and by the time the last one of them rolls in, you will all heave a mighty sigh of relief. That is, if you do not lose yourselves in the ocean of fear that many will experience all around them. Because this time even the most dense and closed down of your fellow compatriots will feel the impact from these celestial messengers, and they, having no previous recollection of anything like it, will certainly choose to hit the panic button.

We do not blame them, as this will be something so unsettling indeed, it will literally shake the foundations of mankind. Just remember that as long as you manage to keep your heads cool and your hearts calm, you will not be dragged under in this churning ocean of panicking souls. Again, there is nothing you as a species fear more than change, and as such this tsunami of change as we call it will take everyone by storm.

Do not for a moment think that anything is amiss if you suddenly enter a period of profound stillness in the midst of all of this intense activity. That is only as it should be, as this is indeed the first sign that you have already penetrated the veil, and you are embarking on your journey into the vastness of creation.

Let us explain. For many of you, you will during one or several of instances during your waking hours suddenly find yourself suspended in a seemingly endless moment of quiet and calm, and you might think that this is indeed in stark contrast to the world outside of you. These moments may occur either during meditation or other forms of rest, and even if you still feel connected to the outside world as it were, you will find yourself simultaneously separated from it. This may sound like an ordinary meditative experience on the outset, but as soon as you enter this state you will immediately recognize it for something very, very new indeed. It is difficult to give you the appropriate words to describe this "in-between" state, as each and every one of you will enter it in a very different manner.

You might also experience visual input during this state, such as intense light and movement or impenetrable darkness. Although you will enter a state of profound separateness from the world as you know it, you will at the same time feel a very, very deep connection to All there is, and for many of you this will indeed be the first taste of this all-encompassing benevolent energygrid we have discussed earlier. Know that this is something you all have in store if you have not opened that door already, and this will be a new discovery so many of you will make in these upcoming days.

We hasten to add that as always, each and every one of you are on your own private journeys, so even if you do not have any clear memory of resting in this state of utter peace, you will soon enter through that same portal and join the cosmos in your own way. But what you all will take out of it, is this: utter bliss and the total vanquishing of fear. In other words, once you have connected to this profound state of stillness, you will no longer harbour any doubt whatsoever as to what the future will bring. Then you will know for certain that the future is already here, and that this, the first little sip from the cup of freedom is only a small drop in the vast ocean of peace and joy you are about to enter.

We hope you all will find comfort in the fact that during these intense periods of energy-downloads awaits an oasis of calmness for each and every one of you. Please enter at your own pace, but let not the fear of others inhibit your journey towards attaining your initiation into this stillness of the heart.

Part 39

Let us go into further details concerning these upcoming events, and how they will appear.

Do not think that everything is written in stone, but much of the details are already set and as such we can give you a sneak preview as it were into some of the finer details at this point. However, we will as always refrain from giving out any exact dates, as this is yet to be decided. Let us just conclude that change is indeed imminent, and you have already started to see some of the effects of this turnaround process, both in your immediate vicinity but also on the global horizon.

Much of this is going on unnoticed, as the media are more concerned about the crumbling of the old, and as such the heralded initiation process will come as a surprise to so many out there. They are all busy looking in the wrong direction, therefore so much of what will transpire will suddenly just spring out almost fully formed from the underground as it were.

Let us explain. As we have already mentioned now the time has come for awakening those souls already slightly awake, and as such the number of souls finally opening their eyes to a new tomorrow will suddenly increase, much like an eruption starting under the sea that suddenly breaks the seemingly calm of the surface above. The 99% movement is a part of these half-awakened souls, and now you will see this interest in getting their voices heard spread like wildfire all across your planet. Up until now, the media have tried to ridicule them or ignore them, the only way they know to treat this kind of "irregular dissenters", but watch as this movement starts to grow at a very rapid rate.

This will open the eyes of so many journalists out there as well, and they will realize that there is indeed a very, very important message behind these seemingly unimportant, disgruntled people. They will suddenly start to understand that these are indeed only a small sign of what is to come, namely a deluge of the so-called "little people" all over the globe who find it impossible to stay silent any longer. The powers that be has for far too long held on to the belief that if these people are treated in the "right" way, namely by holding them down by fear, they can continue to mismanage this planet in any way they can. But surprisingly enough, now they will find that the fear is slowly but surely fading away inside so many of these humble beings, and they are all starting to see their own power. And when they do so, nothing will hold them back ever again.

Remember, those dictators already toppled are but the most visible signs of the rot at the top, and now the whole rotten core of this system will be exposed for all to see. Then they will no longer have the stranglehold on everybody's mind, and you can all finally start to think for yourselves. And when you do, you will waste no time demanding your freedom back from these oppressors, whether they be of the brutal or just plain and simple greedy kind. You will also see how people suddenly realize that there are other ways to arrange their lives, so they can start living in a much more sustainable way and thereby ensure the well-being not only for themselves, but for your planet as well.

Many will start to think outside the box, both in a figurative and literal sense, as so much in your lives have up until now been decided beforehand by outside forces. Now living well will come natural to you, and old, detrimental habits will just fade away. It will literally be like waking up from a dream and start to do everything in a totally different way from before, almost without even thinking why. It will in other words feel like the most natural way to do things, and from then on things will really, really start to change at a very rapid pace indeed.

We have earlier gone into some detail concerning what will happen to those dark overlords and their supporters, so we will use this opportunity to focus on the masses. For many of you, despair has been close when you see all around you the signs of sleepwalking, and we understand that your frustration has been mounting when you fail to see any betterment at all no matter how much you yourselves have changed in this process. Rest assured that help is indeed well on it's way, and part of this plan is to ensure that a much larger volume of enlightened souls will soon awaken all around you. It is indeed imperative that they do so, as we need to know that the general level of vibration here on this planet is high enough to ensure a mass ascension.

Many will protest this, and say that only a small percentage of the population with high enough vibration will suffice, but remember that we are talking about creating a new world for the majority of you, not only for a happy few, and as such the more the merrier. In other words, now the time has come to rip off the duvets from everyone still slumbering away while the rest of you are working your knuckles to the bone. As previously mentioned, the waking-up process might be perceived as rather abrupt and intense for many, but it is indeed necessary.

Although the timing of these events may not be given out at the present moment, rest assured that they are indeed just around the corner, and as such it is indeed imperative that you keep your heads cool during the seemingly total meltdown that will occur all around you.

Remember, this final phase have been heralded for a very long time now, but as soon as you start to see the first unmistakable signs that the process is well under way, many will start to lose their grip on the assurance that all will be well. That is because the signals for change will be of such a magnitude it will shake everyone to the core, and no matter how well prepared you are there is still ample possibility to panic if you choose to do so.

Again, trust that voice of reason in your hearts, and do not hesitate to seek the advice from those around you vibrating at a similar level to your own or higher. This is important indeed, because those still lingering in the lower octaves are the ones easily prone to falling into the trap of fear yet again, so it is imperative that you stay out of the grasp of their clinging fingers once this show gets on the road so to speak.

And let us also remind you to make sure that you literally see what's happening right in front of you, so as not to miss anything of importance. As we said, there are already many, many signs of improvement on many levels, and if you open your eyes to them this whole finale will be perceived very different indeed than if you go by the stories you are being fed by the mass media. Remember, it is in their interest to magnify the fear and downplay the hope, so make sure that you at all times do the opposite.

Part 40

Chapter 26

The topic today might come as a surprise to many, as we would like to delve more into the nature of those entities currently hovering above you in your atmosphere. Many have a hard time believing that you are not sailing all alone in this universe of yours, but let us just put that aside for now.

We have touched upon this topic briefly before, but now we think the time is right to give you more details on this vast army – if we may call it that – that is actually all around you. We hesitate to use the word "army" as this would imply something sinister, and that we have come to conquer and lay this beautiful planet of yours waste. Nothing could be further from the truth, as we are here to ensure freedom for the human race, freedom that has had a very, very long time coming indeed.

As we have stated earlier, this multiverse is so connected, that anything amiss in one corner of it will seriously affect the whole in so many ways. You have been left to your own devices for far too long, and the detrimental effect of this is not hard to see, not even to the blindest of the blind. As said so many times before, you were left to sort it out yourselves, but as have been thoroughly proven by now that task was indeed impossible to perform without outside intervention – or maybe you prefer the word assistance.

This is indeed a touchy subject for so many of you, as there are many, many out there adamant that this is indeed your home, and as such you should be left alone to fend for yourselves, and you think that anything or anyone not from these shores would only arrive with dark deeds concealed behind a pleasant facade. Remember that is how it was the last time, so we cannot blame you. However, this time it is time for the light to arrive, and we are indeed already amassed in such a strength no darkness will be able to hold you back ever again.

But who are we, you might well ask, and we would like to take this occasion to give you some answers to this burning question. Many of us have come from the future, not only from a foreign world to you, and as such this will indeed be a very, very hard fact to swallow for many of you. The future is an even more daunting concept than another planet or part of the multiverse, but that is why we would like to start off with this, the most difficult concept at the outset.

Let us explain. We have previously gone into considerable detail about your very limited concept of time, and the idea planted in your brains that time is a single line of events unspooling much like a roll of film. Time, you say, cannot be stopped or altered in any way, and the timeline you perceive all around you is the only one there is in existence anywhere, not only on your little planet. Nothing could be further from the truth, and as we have shown the multiverse is indeed comprised of an endless web of interlocked timelines, all running at different speeds heading for a very different location, and as soon as you let go of that old, inhibiting imprint you carry in your brains, you will also start to swim more freely in this vast ocean of endless possibilities. Well, let us just say that we are all excellent swimmers, and as such we can navigate these waters in the most advanced manner, and we can therefore switch back and forth between any available timeline at our will.

Therefore, the most important piece of information today will be that not only do we harken from foreign shores, we also go by a very, very different timeframe than the straight and narrow one you inhabit, and as such coming to you from the future is not a hard task to perform for any of us.

To make things even more complicated, let us just add that so many of you currently inhabiting a human body are also visitors from the future, and as such we have so much more in common than you could ever begin to imagine. As you may well know by now, many of you are only visitors to these shores yourselves, sent out from ancient civilizations, eager to get a literally hands on experience of living in a physical body on a very physical planet such as yours.

Remember, you are in many ways a unique species evolving in a very unique place indeed, and as such this experience you are going through is one that many, many other souls out there would like very, very much to be able to join. And so many have joined this group of human souls, you will be surprised the day when the scales fall away and you all realize that your origins or that of your friendly neighbour might be a bit more exotic than you think. Remember, you are indeed a very, very mixed bunch, so much more colorful than what you can tell by a look at the face in your mirror, or by walking down the street.

Again, what you see is not always way you get, and this time you will certainly get the surprise of your lives as soon as the cat is let out of the bag so to speak, and everyone will show their true colours. We do not only refer to those of you of foreign origin walking around inside the vehicle of a human body, but also of all of those still unseen crowding you in on all sides.

Some of us are currently stationed inside so-called motherships patrolling your skies. We like to refer to our mode of transportation thus because they are in fact living entities much as yourselves, and as such we hold them much in awe because of their formidable abilities. They cannot be seen as long as they prefer to stay undetected, but as soon as the signal is given, they too will show themselves in all of their glory. And what a sight it will be dear ones, when you finally see that you are certainly not the solitary traveller in this realm that you for so long have believed.

You are in fact but a small drop in the ocean of living entities, a mere fraction of intelligence in a living and breathing multiverse that far surpasses anything you can imagine at this point. Rest assured that although this may seem to just be a part of someone's wild imagination, you will all see for yourselves the truth of this statement. That is, if you choose to keep your hearts open at this stage. Some will choose to close themselves up again as we enter this, the most intense part of the unveiling process, and as such they will tell their minds to take over from their hearts, and they will continue to refuse to see what is literally hovering right in front of their eyes. But so many of you will choose to open your eyes to what your heart is telling you is the truth, and you will finally behold all of your brethren in all of their glory, as well as finally getting a real look at your own. The latter is by far the most important one, because when you see your own legacy for what is really is, you will realize that you are in fact not a primitive being left stranded on the shores of yesteryear, but a fully functioning member of the multiverse, on par with the rest of us.

That will be a day for celebration indeed, and as it is not too far off we would like to take this opportunity to give you some extra input from home as it were. As we were saying, so many of you herald from much more exotic shores than the one you are currently living on, and many of your fellow compatriots are already here forming a "welcome home" honor guard so to speak. They are comprised of a multitude of beings, all envoys from the different civilizations already present here on this little planet of yours.

You are our most cherished members, as you are the brave souls who once upon a time took upon you this formidable challenge, namely that of leaving your own space and reporting to duty as it were on planet earth. At the outset, you were all carrying imprints of your home, but that imprint was almost totally obliterated as soon as the tricksters came, and as such you have only a tiny, tiny remnant still lingering somewhere in the deepest recesses of your heart. But now that tiny voice have started to gain strength, and so many of you can sense that you are more and more connected back to where you once came from.

You have also had the occasion to come and visit us, your "welcome home committee", on one of the vessels we are currently stationed at, and although some of you have carried back clear memories from these visits, most of you only sense a lingering feeling of longing and sadness when you wake up from one of these nightly visits. That is easy to understand, as it is not easy to let go once you have had your connections with your own kind re-established after such a long time stranded in a foreign place, but rest assured that the day will come when you can stay connected as much as you want.

Remember, once the veils are lifted, they can never be put back in place again, and as such the reconnection process will be a permanent one. You will no longer have to suffer the burden of homesickness, because as soon as you are hooked back into that all-encompassing grid the rest of us are living on, you too will be able to travel back and forth at will between not only different timelines but also different locations, no matter where in the multiverse you might find them. In other words, you, the last castaways, will once more be part of the totality of life, and fully fledged members just like the rest of us. Then you can once more embrace your family, whether they hail from Andromeda, Sirius or any other planetary origin you could care to mention. That will be the day, as they say, and therefore do not despair if you feel the weight of loneliness pressing you down yet again. It is only temporary, and soon you will see all the familiar faces you have missed for far too long milling about you on all sides.

Rest assured that the welcoming committee is already well established, and as such we will waste no time in making sure that the preparations will be finished and the waiting time be kept to a bare minimum.
