

As you have already noticed, the floodgates have been opened now, and a continuous stream of light is flooding into you all. This may manifest itself in so many ways, but first, it will as usually make itself heard in your physical body. Again we hear groans of frustration, so please trust us when we say that this is an unavoidable part of this whole process. Remember, this is not in any way done in order to make you feel as uncomfortable as possible, even if that may seem to be the case in more ways than one. But now, these heightened energies will also bring with them other, less unpleasant side-effects, if we may use such a word, and we think you will all find that these intensified physical responses will start to taper off soon, and then, these other effects will start to become more noticeable.

This will be of little consolation to those still suffering in the throes of some rather intense physical eruptions of different kinds this time, especially since many of you have important days ahead, days you will be spending with your near ones, days that you will feel less inclined than usual to suffer from these physical setbacks. Well, we think that many of you will indeed feel a lessening of these symptoms during those festive days, and even if you will still have a hard time finding your balance again in the aftermath of this intensely charged weekend, we still think you will all find ample time to sit back in peace and quiet and savour this feeling of accomplishment.

For again we want to remind you all that you have accomplished so much these last few months, and as this can easily be lost under the blur of physical and mental convulsions that you have all suffered, it bears to be repeated again. For this year, you have all gone above and beyond the limits you held yourself strictly to just a few months back, and we know that this will become evident to you all if you manage to really go within and take stock of just who you are today. For then, you will find a very new landscape, one that has slowly emerged during these last few months. And, as we have told you so many times already, this virgin territory is so vast, you have not even seen more than the first little segments of it yet. For you have started to unfold this huge, blank canvas within you, one that is untainted by the old and sad scratchings from the one you used to be. And now, you will be given all the colors you can think of in order to start to create the image you want to be.

For you have finished your own cleansing to such a degree, there is no need to hold back on creating the new you, and as such, we want you all to give yourself the biggest gift this Holiday season. For you certainly deserve it in all the ways that one can describe. For you have worked so hard to get to where you are today, standing on the threshold of not only a new year, but a brand new beginning. So let us remind you that this is indeed the perfect time to do as we ask you to do, to sit down and take stock, and please, remember to be generous to yourself as you do this. Do not look for any failings you might consider to still be a part of your life. No, search for the victories, for they are indeed plentiful, and that goes for each and every one of you.

For you are no longer the same person you were when this year started. For in your wake, lies lifetimes of accumulated dross, dross that will no longer serve to hold you back in any way. So this time, we do urge you to take a look over your shoulder, the better to see all of the old baggage you have left behind on this stage of the journey. And then, we urge you to sit down and look ahead, at that wide open, inviting space beckoning you to come to it. And remember, this will not be merely a short visit. No, this brand new space is yours for the remainder of your sojourn within this current physical manifestation. So make sure you do not miss out on any of the wonders that are yours for the taking during this time. They are up for grabs, ready and waiting for your arrival. So get into the Holiday spirit by giving yourself the gift of acknowledging all of the hard work you have accomplished, and most of all, acknowledging all of the changes in your very own persona you have accomplished too. They are certainly no mean feat, and we do applaud you all for your valiant efforts. They have not been wasted in any way, and even if your physical body may feel like it is starting to lag more than a little bit behind in all of these whirlwinds of change, know that the only reason it feels like this, is that it is changing rapidly also, alongside those more mental aspects that you have worked so hard to release from your baggage this year.

So therefore, know that even if this year seems to have taken its toll on you all, this year has in fact made you all just that more resilient and strengthened, so out of this paradox emerges the new human, the human that has made null and void of so many of those old rules that used to govern you. Both the self-imposed limitations, but also those superimposed, external ones that have hampered you so much. So here you stand, free of so much that used to be an intrinsic part of you a mere 12 months back, but is no more. So as you have become less of what you used to be, you have also become more of what you will be. But there is more to come, dear ones, and as you shall see as the new year dawns just a few short days away, you have many gifts waiting for you that will far surpass anything you might find under any Christmas tree this year. For even if the gifts you have already bestowed upon yourself this year are more than impressive, they are nothing compared to what you still have in store. So again we say, take some time to congratulate yourself on a job very well done, and take some time to sit down in anticipation for what is yet to come. For this journey is by no means over yet, and the best is yet to come, as they say. And this time, no words could ring more true than these.

You have perhaps already managed to tap into the new force that sits ready and waiting for you dear ones, the force that will bring you all the way across that threshold you seem to have been hovering before for such a long time now. You see, this is indeed an exciting time for you all, as you have all been readied for this final stage of this enormous salvage operation, if we may use such a word, but now, things will start to get into the swing as it were. You see, these times will not go unnoticed by anyone, as the heightened levels of energetic emissions that will hit your own personal atmosphere have never been higher, and as such, they will have a deep impact on you all. We are well aware that for most of you, the impact you have registered so far can perhaps not be described as entirely positive, if positive at all, for they can mainly be described as deep and throbbing pain within your physical tissues and as anxiety, unease and perhaps even anger on your mental level. But now, the veil will start to lift in a way that will help you all to see beyond this energetic unpleasantness and give you that first glimpse of the freedom that lies beyond this veil of forgetfulness, toil and travail that has been suspended between you and the world of your dreams.

We know these words may seem to be overly lofty to some, as you have perhaps already gotten ready to toss that word "dream" on the scrapheap, for to you, there seem to be nothing more to dream about, as what you have wanted for so long seem to have reverted further and further into the distance, while your physical body has been reduced more and more to a heap of listless, exhausted remains. But hear us out when we say that your dream has not been torn to tatters, it is simply your human residue that is still overpowering you with its need to state its displeasure with all of these changes. For remember, beneath this layer of utter exhaustion, pain and displeasure lies not only a totally renewed physical body, therein lies also the brand new you, the you that will soon be allowed to come out and shine its true light for the very first time.

We are aware that our words will be insufficient comfort to those of you carrying the heaviest burden of these symptoms, but we also know that none of you have lost the dream that you came here to realise. For that dream is still very much present within you, and not only as a mere figment of your imagination. No, it is there as a seed, ready to come in to full bloom at the earliest opportunity. For what you describe as your dream, is simply your part of the aforementioned blueprint that you all came carrying with you as you incarnated on this planet. And as such, it is not just a wild and improbable part of your imagination. It is simply an apt description of what you came here to manifest. So as you face those last few hours of the year that you have designated as 2013, know that your dream is already starting to send out those first tender tendrils of its roots, and it is getting ready to germinate in a way that will take your breath away once you see the first little shoots emerge from that dormant seed of your dream. For it is not only you who have come here to blossom, it is that dream of yours, the dream that you share with millions of other enlightened beings present on this planet at this very time. And do not think that you are here by accident, and that what you have done so far has not bore any fruits. No, your labour has been fruitful in so many ways, as you have used the time well. For you have managed to make yourself start to blossom in a way that was not possible before, and as you all start to stretch to your full height towards the light, that dormant seed of your dream within each and every one of you is also starting to sprout. So as you look back on this industrious year, know that the year you see ahead, the year that is about to begin, will be known as the prosperous one, the fruitful one, the one that will make millions of seeds grow. And what they will grow into, can simply be described like this: the garden of Eden.

Now, you have all passed over that threshold where tomorrow has become today, and as such, you start over with a brand new set of coordinates with which to navigate. And do not worry, even if our words at times may sound overly confusing to you, you are more than capable of navigating these uncharted waters. For now, you all possess all the skills you will ever need to tap into in order to make what you have dreamed of for so long a reality. And never doubt dear ones, they are indeed there, deep within you all, and even if you have yet to make their acquaintance in full, never the less, they are there, ready and waiting for you to find them. And find them you will, when the time is right, and you are ready to utilize them in full.

We know that this seemingly eternal waiting to do just that will make many a heart groan in exasperation, but again, we will repeat our old mantra of everything will happen just when the time is right for it to do so, and in this, it is simply the case of settling in and starting to see what will transpire. For much will happen in the weeks ahead, and even if the sequence of events will not be laid out before you beforehand, you will all find these new stair steps more than within your reach. For this time, you have what it takes, and then some, no matter what happens in your life, and no matter what happens in the world around you. For now, you are ready, ready to explode into all the colours of the universe, like a veritable fireworks of energetic discharges. For this time, it is more about what you will send out than what you will receive, and we do mean that in every kind of way. For now, you have become veritable fountains of energy, as you are so deeply plugged into Source, you can transmit vast amounts of this matter out into the atmosphere around you.

This may sound strange to many of you, as you have all been so enclosed within your own personal development, and rightly so, as that has been the task you all were given to complete during the past period. But now, you will be going one large step further, for you have simply outgrown those old and worn out shoes of yesteryear, and you have slipped your feet into the brand new ones. Or rather, the shoes that you used to wear, when you were the one you have become once again, that multi-dimensional, multi-talented being, the Creator, the maker of miracles, and not just that humble human, too bogged down by all of the self-imposed and super-imposed limiting baggage you used to cart around. But as the fireworks marked the passage of the old year and into the new, so too it marked the passage from the old you and into the new.

For this year is all about new beginnings, about venturing forth on a pristine road, one that has not been put onto any chart yet. For it is you and only you who will decide the direction and the incline of this road, as now, you are indeed given carte blanche as to how you must manage the new you. For you are all veritable hot spots of energy now dear ones, and you can use that energy in a multitude of ways, and none of them are negative. For the energy you carry with you, is there for one purpose only, to serve the light, and to help enhance the light in every single living being around you. And how do you do that? Well, that is entirely up to you, dear ones. For the contract you signed on to before you came into being in this physical body only stipulated that you needed to go through the process of liberating yourself from the old and limited life of being a human, a singular entity, seemingly hell bent on living a life of desperation and suffering. And when you agreed to do just that, that was all you did agree to, for afterwards, we all agreed that it would be up to you to manage the gift of liberty you would give yourself. And remember, there is no way you can misuse this gift of liberty, for it cannot be used in order to ensnare and imprison others, not in any way. For if you try to do just that, you will simply end up in your own prison again, trapped within the old walls of self-imposed limitation.

So again we say, salute yourselves for the work you have accomplished, for you have managed to fulfill that first and only point on your personal agenda, of setting yourself free from the old you. And know that as in all things human, it will take some time before you truly understand just how free you are now. For those prison walls will still linger in the mind of so many of you, like echoes of times bygone. And as a human has been programmed long ago to stick to the old and avoid changing into something brand new, you may still find yourself trying to stick to the old and well-worn path of yesteryear in the way that you react and indeed act on the impulses that come from the outside. Please remember not to give yourself any hard time over it, for it is simply a natural part of this process. Rather, give yourself understanding and most of all love, for self love is what has been lacking in all of you for such a long time, and as such, it will take some time for that inner, all-pervading love of self to come all the way out to the surface.

So we salute you, dear ones, and we do hope you will take the time to do so yourself, for it is not more than what you deserve. You have thrown off the old shackles, and even if you think you feel them still restricting your every move, they are simply the ghost of how you used to be, but are no longer. And as the light within slowly but surely starts to get up to your new normal level of incredibly bright, it will help to dissipate all of the old shadows and all of the old ghosts, and then you will see yourself bright and pure and new in your own eyes, not just in ours. For we see your splendor, even if you have yet to see but a small glimpse of it, and nothing will give us more joy than to look into your eyes on the day when you finally see it fully yourself.

As you have already ascertained, these incoming thrusts from your friendly neighbour, your Sun, will leave their mark on many of you, and no, we do not refer to the passing symptoms they will induce. Rather, we refer to the fact that the information all of these particles carry within them, and that will be deposited within your system, will start to make their voice heard in so many ways. Again, we refer to things that you will each be able to tune into on an individual basis, for the information we talk about, is not on a global scale, even if it will be perceived on a global scale, as these voices within will be heard by a large number of people and as such, the rippling effect from all of this energetic retuning will be heard far and wide.

For what we are talking about, is that internal conference going on within each and every one of you, and within each and every individual cell in your physical body, but most of all, the conversation that is now being started to be carried out between these cells and that more intangible part of you, your soul if, you will. For even if there has been a lot of conversation within you all for a very long time, you have yet to be a very conscious part of it, and rightly so, for the larger part of this conversation has been going on on levels that the human part of your consciousness has not been able to detect. You see, all of the physical processes within your body is one thing, they are perhaps far too complicated in themselves for you to even begin to comprehend at all, but there is another layer to all of this, and that is the frequency of interaction between your sub-consciousness - or perhaps we should call it your over-consciousness, and the different components of your physical body.

You may remember that we have previously referred to the connection between you and your physical body as a match made in heaven, in every sense of the word, and this match has now been made into an even deeper union, as you have been given a brand new opportunity to connect over previously closed walls. For your physical body has been running its own show for a very long time now, in fact, it has been doing all it can to keep itself going, no matter what your human soul has ordered it to do, and as such, it has gotten used to be rather self-contained, if you will. But now, that is about to change on a very deep and profound level once again. Remember, the connection between the higher parts of you and this, the manifest human vehicle, has previously been upgraded in many instances, but now, the exchange of information between them will increase in such a way, you will find yourself in the middle of a veritable blitz of information going to and from the different parts of you. This may sound confusing, for you have already gotten to understand that many of those hitherto very distant parts of you have already made their new home within your physical body, as this is in all intents all about getting back to Oneness in every way. But still, there are indeed parts of you not located within this physical frame of yours, and as such, we need to make the passage of information between all aspects of your being, both in a physical and in a non-physical form, much more streamlined. And so, enter these latest models of information capsules being injected into your being by that helping and obliging partner of yours, the Sun.

For there are indeed still new connections to be made in order to fine tune this whole set up, as it is more than complex, and as yet, you have still to reach perfection, so too in this. For everything takes time, dear ones, and even if we would love nothing more than to say that this is it, every last piece is finally in its designated place, we have still some rather important business to attend to in order to make you all set to go as it were. We know that this will be seen as just another way of backtracking from our statement that the grand event is just around the corner, but that is not the case. For the grand event IS still just around the corner, and we are not dragging our feet in any way in order to stall it or keep you hanging suspended as if in thin air, waiting for something that may seem to become more and more elusive as the days come and go, seemingly without anything happening at all. Suffice it to say, there are a myriad of things going on, and again, we venture to guess that you can all attest to that, if you take the time to sit down and connect to that beehive of activity you harbour within the confines, and indeed without the confines, of your physical body.

For once again the level of activity and indeed the amount of information pouring into you very being, and yes, we speak of the whole of you, not just the parts that you are on speaking terms with on a daily basis, has become speeded up to such a degree, you are indeed racing for that finishing line at full speed ahead. We know it will feel like the opposite is true, as so many of you seem to be hovering suspended in a void of nothingness that is perhaps the most challenging place to be. For you all crave action, as in progress, but what is happening to you, is going on literally under your very eyes, but you have little or no way of detecting it just yet. So it may seem that you once again have been derailed and is parked on a sideline somewhere out in the wilderness, forgotten by all, seen by none, and desperate for some tangible results from all of this advertised action. So once again, we can only dispense the same advice as usual, that all is well and you are exactly where you are meant to be. You are not left out, nor left behind, no matter how eerily still and devoid of connection and insights you might feel yourself at the moment. You are simply disconnected from the goings on within in order to give full priority to what is taking place there, like your own body will switch off some of its own internal systems in order to give as much energy as possible to the processes that needs it during a special phase of your existence.

So too is this, so even if you do feel left out of it, know that this is not done with ill intent, rather, it is being done in order to make sure that everything is done in order to make you fit for fight once again within the least amount of time. And no, we do not mean as in a real fight, we are simply using this phrase to say that you are going through a very complex process, and this process sometimes requires for you to be put on hold as it were for the duration, so that all those parts that your human brain has no control over, can be upgraded and adjusted in way that will make your whole being benefit from it. We know this may sound that you are a simply a bystander to this process, but remember, you are very much a part of this, as those parts of you that you have yet to connect with are in on this 100%. They are the ones that are currently working in tandem with that highly complex physical system that you are inhabiting, and as such, YOU are helping YOU attain your full power, but the human part of your consciousness is the only one not given a job to do at the moment. Except perhaps to simply BE, and stay centered and rely on the other, more advanced parts of you that are helping to run the show at this stage of the proceedings. And know that you will soon get to know YOU in a very new way, for that human part of you that feel more than a little bit left out of it all at the moment, will soon find itself happily immersed within the rest of that wondrous being that is the real you, the complete you, the one that is currently working ever so hard behind your line of vision in order to make that full and final reunion become a reality.

As the time continues to speed up, you will all at one time feel as if lost behind the veil as it were, as you will all come to a point where the person you have thought yourself to be, seems to vanish as if into thin air, and rightly so. For you are no more tangible than the very air itself, if you think of it, for you are indeed made of the same stuff as the air. Indeed, you are but a collection of particles hovering closely together, forming the body that you up until now have defined as you. But you are not that body, in fact, you are simply inhabiting this body, much like a small crustacean will find an empty shell to shelter within for a certain amount of time, until that shell becomes too restricted, and it will need to move on in order to grow some more. So too it is with you, as you are indeed something vast indeed, so that only a portion of you can inhabit this small corporeal form you call a human body. But now, much have changed, and so, a much larger portion of what can truly be defined as you, the real you that is, can now be housed within this said corporeal form, and as such, this time, there is no need to make a hasty escape from it in order to grow even further.

For during this latest upgrading of your functional system, more room was indeed created, and so, more of you have already made its home there, alongside all of those bits and pieces of you that have been around for a while already. Remember, when you first entered this physical body, it was only a small portion of you that came in, devoid of so much that constitutes the real you, the essence of you if you will. But as you have allowed this process of reintegration to commence, you have by now accumulated a whole wealth of your former elusive parts, and as such, you have become far better adapted to perform all of the magical tricks that you came here to do. We use these rather informal words of magical tricks, but that is not in order to play down your part in this whole operation, far from it. Rather, we use these words in order to remind you all that what we are speaking of, is that truly magical art of creating, the art that requires a light heart and a joyful mind, hence our rather light-minded choice of words.

As we were saying, even if you have all come to a point where you are so much more than what you were only a short time ago, you will also come to a point where you will feel so much less than ever before. Because you will at one time or another find yourself as if dissolving into nothingness, like there is no more substance to you, and where your old and faithful physical body simply will feel as if it is falling apart into its singular components, no more connected than the clouds in the sky, a mere semblance of matter, but still, nothing more substantial than a wispy cloud in the afternoon sky. But at the same time, we can guarantee you all that you will never feel yourself more substantial as when you find yourself scattered into a billion little pieces, seemingly tossed up into the air, for the wind to blow about like nothing more than scraps of paper in a storm. For then, you will truly feel the real power of who you really are. For you are ALL, you are everywhere, and you are no thing at the same time. And as you see this, you will also see far, far beyond the limits you used to stare into every day, when you thought you were nothing more than a human, defined by the confines of that fleshy object, your own body.

For as you find yourself falling apart, disintegrating into seeming nothingness, you will also find yourself stepping into the real you, the limitless you, the one that has no borders, and therefore, the one that has no end. No end to what you can achieve, no end to what you can be, no end to what you already are, and as such, this falling apart will quite simply be the coming together of the realization of your own true self, the self that is not inhibited by any concept of time or space or indeed matter. For then, you will simply know that you ARE, and no matter what you do or what you choose not to do in the upcoming period, it will have no impact on this, the very core of you. For it is indeed eternal, and it is indeed omnipresent, and it will always be thus.

But remember, it is indeed up to each and every one of you if you choose to live out the remainder of the time span of this incarnation with that realization within your consciousness, or if you choose to forgo that and simply continue to live your life as an ordinary citizen, a mere human, dictated by all of the whims and limitations of that flesh and blood you are encapsulated within, or if you choose to embrace all that you are, and set yourself free to roam that vastness of you while still residing within that complex and extremely accommodating physical vehicle in which you currently reside. For now, after this latest and grand installment, you and that physical vehicle have become compatible, and indeed companionable, in a way that none of you have ever been before, and as such, you will be able to live out quite another life together, where you and your body in tandem will burst through any and all of the previous limitations put upon you both. But again, this will be your choice, and your choice only. So again we say, choose wisely, and do not think you have to do this or that to attain that freedom to truly choose what you want in this. For in this, you have already accomplished what you need in order to make that choice freely, and so, we leave it to you to make it as you wish.

As you have perhaps already noticed, the ebb and flow of these brand new energies works in very different ways than before, and rightly so. For you have not only reached a brand new plateau in this ongoing process of reconnecting and remembering the different aspects that compose the true you, you have also managed to wrestle yourself away from the influence of the old and outdated modes and frequencies.

Let us explain. As many of you are already aware of, this process entails an ever changing sequence of frequencies being beamed into your body through different means, and as we have told you before, this must be done in increments, in order to accommodate your physical vehicle. For without the assistance of this much-maligned physical vehicle, you would not even be able to be here in the first place, going through this monumental change. And when we say much maligned, it is because mankind tend to look upon this ingenious construction of flesh as nothing more than variation of more or less unintelligent tissue, tissue that is prone to slip up in all sorts of ways by falling prey to any and all illnesses and outside influences. Well, this oft criticized contraption is in fact far, far more complex and indeed intelligent than a human mind is, and as such, you are actually inhabiting something that up until now has far surpassed your abilities to communicate and to complete complex and intricate operations. For this is not simply a lump of flesh that you are encumbered with, this is in matter of fact a highly evolved biological vehicle that is perfectly adapted to a life on this planet. It may not seem like it is, as it in the current condition seems to be nothing more than a fragile shell, destined to fall apart and cease to function sooner rather than later, but again, that is simply because you have not been able to access the enormous array of intelligence and capacity to evolve that this seemingly frail body actually carries within.

But now, through this long and at times tedious process of upgrading you and most of all, this physical vehicle of yours, through countless injections of energetic information and sustenance, you are now on the threshold of truly discovering just what a treasure it is you have been given. For this lump of flesh, as many like to look upon it as, is nothing like that at all. It is in fact a highly evolved, highly complicated and first of all, a highly intelligent creation that will be with you for the remainder of this sojourn on this planet. And, as we have told you before, it will be your most precious ally, your constant companion, your tireless co-worker, and the one that will enable you to truly work miracles while you still walk upon this Earth. For remember, without this body, you would simply be a thought, a non-manifested being, incapable of carrying out the monumental changes you have come here to carry forth. For you are not the YOU you are supposed to be at this stage of your evolution if you were bereft of that outer layer of you, that physical vehicle that stands between you and everything else at the moment. But it is not standing in your way, it is there so that you can access everything that exists on this planet. For everything else, you are fully capable of accessing yourself, through that vast and all-encompassing parts of you that is YOU in all of your other aspects, except that physical, human part of you where you are currently inhabiting.

But again, you are all not yet fully reunited with the full knowledge of your true scope, so we do understand that this will be uppermost on your mind at times like these, but we do want you to remember that the very fact that you are within this selfsame physical body, is the one defining factor to us at the moment. For if you were not encapsulated within that body, you would not be this all-important go-between for what lies behind the veil and what exists literally on the ground, and as such, we want you to take note of what is going on within you at the moment. When we say “go within”, we often refer to the fact that you are already carrying with you every single piece of knowledge, and every single attribute and ability you will ever need to exist here on this planet, and anywhere else in All of creation. But this time, when we ask you to go within, we ask you to connect truly and deeply with that “fleshy container”, the one that acts as your arms and your legs, your ears and your eyes, your mouth and your very ability to BE one amongst millions of others like you. For this physical manifestation, this wondrous being is yours, in all sense and purposes, for as long as you need it. And it will do everything for you, but you must also re-connect with this, just as you are doing with all of those other aspects of yourself that are residing on so many other levels.

For this physical body is not you, but it is there FOR you, to be utilized at the best of its abilities. So love it, and talk to it, and listen to it and connect with it, for it is indeed waiting for you to reach out to it in a very new way. And just like you, it is brand new, for it has been through the wringer, literally, in order for it to be rid of all of the old and inhibiting programming it has been subjected to earlier, and in order for it to become fully functional once again. But it needs you to complete this process, by acknowledging its very existence, and by acknowledging its importance – to you, and to this process of re-inventing not only yourself, but this whole world into something that far surpasses and outlasts the old and outdated modes of everything. For just as you have outgrown those old and ill-fitting shoes of yesteryear, your body has outgrown that old and outmoded way of being an extremely vulnerable and limited biological specimen, for now, it stands ready to aid and assist you to the fullest of its potential, and it is a grand one indeed. For now, you have both stepped away from the old and into the new, but as yet, you have not been able to tap fully into that new and exciting potential of that energetic sustenance that surrounds you on all sides. For you will only be able to do that if you manage to reunite yourself with that brand new version of that same old body of yours, except now, it is not old and tired, it is up and running afresh, ready to take you on a long and exciting and prolific journey into that brand new today, and all of the wondrous tomorrows that awaits you.

So go within, and look and listen and answer back when you are called to do so. It will do the both of you a world of good, and it will help to cement a friendship and a collaboration the likes have never before been seen, not on these shores, nor anywhere else.

As you have perhaps already noticed, this continuous ebb and flow of energies has laid bare so much land within you all that has hitherto been left barren, but now, the time to till, sow and plow this land has come, and the crops from all of this arable land will soon come to fruition. As usual, we speak in riddles at times, but let us try to explain just what we mean by these words that we have already given you.

You see, mankind has in many ways been living in a bubble, suspended in a vast sea of energy, but as this bubble has been very much contained within itself, not much of any outside influence has been able to penetrate within this little globe populated by a vast array of humanity. And so, you have in many ways been left out of all that has happened around you while you have been whiling away the time in your little bubble of disharmony. For as you are well aware of, the disturbances that you have endured during the time of your evolution, has in many ways been isolated events. That is, they have been going on within this same bubble, unaffected by what has been there, on the outside of this thin membrane at all times.

For what has been there, has been everything you could dream of and more, and even if mankind has yet to see the full scope of it, it has been there at all times, even as you have gazed into the unknown and seen nothing more than stars glittering on the firmament. And so, you have kept plodding on, unawares that there is so much more out there, ready to make your acquaintance in all sorts of ways. And as you plodded forwards, you started to veer of the path in such a way, it started to threaten your whole existence. And so, a decision was made, that this bubble must now be burst in order to let in the fresh air and indeed light that will help mankind the better to find its way forwards, and in a way that would be of enormous benefit, not only to you, but to All of creation. And so the decision was made, and the volunteers came in to start to make apertures in this veil, this membrane, that isolated mankind from everything else. And YOU are those volunteers, you are the ones that have take upon you to pierce through the shell of this seemingly all-enduring wall of denial that has stood between you and the rest of us, and that has stood between you and the real you. And so, that is exactly what you have done, and now, there is no more airtight – or rather light-tight container that can keep mankind down and out of everything else. For now, that old container has been shred to tatters, and the only thing still left of it, is the imprint that is still very much printed on the minds of so many members of mankind. For as we have talked about earlier, even when the prison walls are completely dismantled, it will take some time before all of the former prisoners come to grips with the fact that they are prisoners no more, as their mind is so used to seeing this wall before them, it will continue to think it is there, even when it is not.

So therefore we say, it is of the utmost importance that you seek to uncover all of this formerly barren land within you that has been left bare now that the old inhibitors have been taken away. For if you do not seek out this brand new property of yours and take it into possession, it will continue to lie there, barren and devoid of life, instead of being turned into the wondrous paradise of new growth that it has every opportunity to become. And how do you step into this brand new land as its lord and Creator? Why, by simply allowing yourself to acknowledge the fact that it is there. You see, you have been born with blinkers on, as mankind has been for generation after generation, and as such, you have become accustomed to seeing what is only within your limited line of vision, and everything outside of that, has ceased to exist. And when we say “line of vision”, we refer to everything that lies within the full range of perception, whether that be through the eyes, the ears, the nose, the touch and indeed each and every way you as a being can perceive what surrounds you.

Remember, mankind has had a very limited way of looking at things, and now, as the veil of illusion has lifted, you are all set to start to sense what has been hidden from view for ever it seems. And so, you will all need a little prodding in order to let yourself be tossed into that vast new ocean of realities, realities that far surpass anything you have yet to see with your human way of looking at things. For there is so much more to find here, not just between the lines of this message, but between the lines of everything that surrounds you. You have grown accustomed to take in the world by taking everything at its face value, but now, we are once again reminding you to go far, far deeper than that. For underneath the surface is where you will find it all, as underneath the surface is where reality lies. It will seem to be rather murky and unclear at first, for it takes time to readjust your vision in order to see clearly through your brand new set of eyes, for that is what we are talking about here. For you need to remind yourself to see THROUGH what you are actually seeing, and see behind these seemingly closed doors, and around the corners that seem to stand in your way.

Again, we seem to be talking in riddles, but this is simply an effort to give you all a little shake to make you drop a little bit more of those old pretences about who and what you TRULY are. You see, this old and inhibiting mold that you were cast in as you came down to inhabit this human body is a difficult one to liberate oneself from, for it has made such a strong imprint and indeed impression on you all, you have simply forgotten the true magnitude and aptitude of your own brilliant being. And so, you are apt to thread in your own old footprints, even when a brand new road to the future lies there before you, ready to be traveled at high speed.

So again we say, cast away your old notions, and step into the true realization of your greatness by laying aside all of those old notions of destitution and disconnection. It runs so deep in you all, and so, it takes quite an effort to wrestle yourself away from this old image of yourself as a mere simple human being within a frail body inhabiting a threatened world full of disaster already in the making. For if you let yourself be stuck within these old frames, you will not become anything else than a faded old print hanging on the wall, still framed within these old confines of humanity. For you must free yourself completely from all of this subordination and subjugation to the old, step out of that frame and truly let yourself float free in these brand new currents of air, like a bird soaring effortlessly above, carried aloft by the very air itself.

We know this will sound more than a little challenging to so many of you, for you may feel like a child being wrestled away from her only support while still unsure of her own legs. But do not worry, dear ones, you have the legs to carry you anywhere you would dare to venture, and you have the spirit that will take you as far as you can think and beyond, and you have the love and the support of each and every one of us, standing here, just outside the remnants of that old bubble of yours with open arms, ready to embrace you as you dare to take your first faltering steps outside your own comfort zone. For remember, that is what this is all about, daring to go where NO man has gone before, and as such, the challenge is a great one indeed. But it is not more than any one of you will be able to take on with a resounding success, for this is what you came here to do, and we are confident that this is exactly what you will all do. But just like a fledgling bird, perched on the edge of the nest that seems to sit on a dizzying height, the temptation to hold on a little bit more before it takes that plunge into the unknown and untried is a powerful one, so you will all instinctively try to hold yourself back just a little bit more. And that is why we are here, to give you that little push in the back, and be that voice in your ear saying JUMP! For now, the time has come to do just that, so if you need something to hold on to to help you do just that, hold on to the future, not the past, for the past will try to keep you sitting on that same ledge forever.

By now, the incoming waves of energetic transformation have been lapping at your heels, but now, you will find yourself swimming in a veritable ocean of it. This may sound ominous to some, but trust us when we say that you will all feel buoyed by these energies, not drowned in them. And why is that? Simply the fact that you have managed to un-manacle yourself from the old inhibitors that you have been dragging behind you, seemingly forever. We know these words will sound repetitious to some, but bear with us, for we do see the need for countless repetitions of the same message. Do not take this as any form of criticism, rather, it is simply a statement to signify that we are all aware that this process of total liberation from the old is not one that is accomplished seemingly overnight. In many aspects, it will be so, literally, as you will all experience true quantum leaps on your advancement towards the real you, but if you look on the whole, you see step after careful step being played out. And yes, this is indeed all part of the plan, and yes, we have also taken into consideration the endurance and the tenaciousness of human perseverance and indeed patience. For even if it may seem to be wearing thin in some of you, we also know that it is in fact more than durable, and if it was not, this operation would not be opened up in the first place.

Remember, you have been in on this from the very beginning, from the first plans were drawn up, and as such, you are well aware of the consequences of going into battle as it were with this old and stubborn pattern of being human. For that is what you have taken upon you, to break that old mold into pieces, for it never to rise again. And you are doing a formidable job of it, make no mistake, and all of the accolades you have earned so far is truly nothing more than you deserve. For you are indeed shining examples of fearless workers on behalf of All of creation, pushing your whole weight against that old and seemingly unmoving stone grinding down humanity to mere shadows of their former glory. And now, this stone has been well and truly lifted out of the way, and the road towards your old and former glory lies there open, ready for you all to take those first confident steps upon it. But as yet, that confidence seems to be lacking in so many, for you have yet to truly take in that fresh air that is around you on all sides.

Let us explain. As we have discussed earlier, mankind's propensity to linger in what was, is a strong one indeed. So too in this, and it is as if you naturally seek to cling to the old and familiar remnants of something, no matter how detrimental and ill fitting it may be for you, rather than to pry loose your grip and let yourself fully embrace the brand new. Again, this is not said in order to chastise you in any way, rather, it is to remind you that the coast is clear, and you are free to go wherever you choose to go. Remember, this is your choice, and your choice only, as there is no power in existence that can force you to do anything at all. For it is up to each and every one of you whether or not to start venturing down that highway to freedom, or perhaps we should call it the highway OF freedom, or if you prefer to stick around in that old and familiar but perhaps not so comfortable place of the known. So again we say, do not berate yourself for holding back, but do not let yourself stop pushing yourself just that little bit further. For you have all come such a long, long way since you opened yourself up to be a part of this quest for true freedom, so why stop here? It is a little bit like those long distance runners, giving it all that they can for the best part of the race, only to pack it in when the finishing line is in sight. Again, this is not a race, we do not pick out any "winners" or "losers" here, we are simply trying to get you to see that you are SO close to attaining that true freedom you have been struggling to find for such long time.

Yes, you are tired, yes, it may seem that this stretch of the road goes on forever, yes, it may seem that as soon as you reach one mountain top, you see the road ahead winding down and then up again to another one. But trust us when we say we are not sending you out on a wild-goose chase here, luring you into going one step further under false pretences. We are merely here to do all that we can in order to keep you going and not give up, especially not now, when you are so close to finding that goal you have been striving for forever. You see, you asked us to do this beforehand, and we did agree to do this. For we all knew that this task was not one that could be completed without any assistance at all, and that was not the goal either. No, this is in all aspects a collective effort, and we do mean that regarding both sides of the veil. For just as you are seeking comfort and support in each other, so too are we banding together in order to give you all the tools and indeed all the cheering on that you must have in order to make you complete what you came here to do. For you are not doing this just for YOU, you are doing this for All of creation, and even if this is something that you are well aware of already, we will continue to remind you of it. Not to put any extra pressure on you, but to remind you that you have all the love in the world and beyond behind you in this, and you have all the light you need at your disposal in order to keep you going when you find yourself flagging.

For we all knew it would be a long haul, and we all knew it would be a process that would involve a lot of different stages, and a lot of hard work on your behalf, and so, nothing was left to chance in this, the greatest turn-around process ever taken on. And so, you were the chosen ones, the brave ones, the indefatigable ones, hand picked to be the soldiers on the ground as it were. The mighty beings who chose to step into that small and restricting mantle of human-ness in order to enlarge that to its true size, by breaking down any barriers that was standing between you and your true greatness. And this is what you have done, and it has been a great success indeed, so now, what remains, is for you to truly carry this new and enlarged version of humanity forwards and into the light. For it is already there, the new and indeed great version of you, but still, it is waiting for you to claim it, like a forgotten coat hanging at the back of the cupboard, unclaimed and unseen.

And that is why we are here, to remind you that you have already succeeded in attaining your goal of freedom, but you have yet to claim your prize, and as such, we will keep at it until you do. For you deserve nothing less than to take that victory lap, resplendent in your brand new cloaks of light, surrounded by all of us, applauding you and embracing you for the wondrous beings that you truly are. But in order for us to do just that, you need to acknowledge it for yourself, and as such, you still have some more work to do in that respect. But again, we are more than confident that you will succeed in this, as you have already done in everything else. For you are truly the shining ones, the ones that have managed to break free from that old and mummified cocoon that has held mankind captive for such a long time. But like bewildered newly emerged butterflies, you sit there, with your shimmering wings hanging limp by your side, as if you have not yet noticed them nor intuited the freedom they have granted you. For you have yet to soar, dear ones, even if that is why you came here. Yes, you came to do an intensely challenging labour of love, but that was not the real reason, the real reason, was for you to savour the end results in any way you can. And that, dear ones, is a treat you have not yet given yourself.

So again we say, it is time to take to your wings, time to soar, time to laugh, time to love and time to rejoice. We know you may feel more inclined to stick around and lick those battle wounds a little bit more before you try stretching out in any direction just yet, but trust us when we say that what you feel of exhaustion and weariness from this long and hard travail will simply vanish the moment you decide to lift off. And we do mean that in every sense of the word. For your physical body may feel more than a little bruised and battered at the moment, but it wants nothing more than to soar alongside your shimmering, glittering spirit, and the two of you make up a resplendent couple indeed. So try at least to flap those wings a little bit, and we can guarantee you you will find your spirit lifting, and it will be gladdened to see your body lifting alongside of it.

We would like to delve a little bit into a subject we have discussed earlier, as this is something that perhaps has been overshadowed a little bit by recent internal upheavals if you will, and what we are talking about, is the subject of creation and the role that you all play in it. If you cast your mind back to the messages we delivered on this topic a while back, you will remember that we went to rather great lengths to reveal the nuts and bolts of it, if you will. In other words, we discussed the basic principles, which are indeed extremely simple, but which raises some rather complex questions within you all. And this is indeed what we would like to return to, for what is standing between you and this basic and all-pervading process of creation, is your endless quest for answers. And so, you tend to make extremely complicated what is in fact extremely simple, and as usual, what stands between you and your own greatness, is that small but still rather formidable obstacle of the human mind, or rather, the human way to perceive things.

You see, you have a propensity to complicate whatever it is you connect with, because you do have a hard time erasing your memory base in such a way, it leaves you unfettered to make any new and ground breaking insights. And what do we mean by that? Why, simply the fact that you have an inherent mechanism that colours whatever it is you encounter with the same base layer of energetic frequency that you used to vibrate at, and as such, even if all of the fundamentals change, you will still look at it with the same eyes. And so, thinking out of the box, as you like to call it, takes an almost super human effort at times. And now, as you will be required to not just think out of the box, but leave this same box altogether, you will find yourself struggling in so many ways. For what you need to do, is actually to erase what has been, and find a way to trust that when you do this, you as an entity will not be removed in the same instance. Rather, it is only by erasing the remnants of all that you have been you can become new again. And new is what you need to become, in order to truly access that deep well of knowledge that will help you to become the creator you are meant to be. You see, the old basic building blocks that make you a human was actually altered in such a way, it will hinder you in said quest of attaining that freedom you so long for, and as such, you will need to leave everything behind that you have taken to be "you" in a human form.

We hasten to add that this does not mean extinction of the you that has always been hidden within that human form, and it is not a process that will entail physical death in any way. Rather, this is a process that seeks to truly liberate you from ALL of the old and inhibiting patterns that still rule the minds of so many. For as you have already discovered yourself, breaking free of this mold is not something that is easily accomplished, and that is not a surprise to anyone, not to anyone on our side of the veil either. For we know fully well what that old programming has done to your spirits, and as such, we also know that you need assistance if you are to become those free spirits yet again. For you must un-create yourself in order to re-create not only you, but also everything else that you are to be the creators of, and as such, you can in many ways be likened to that old concept of Shiva, the destructor and the creator, in one and the same physical manifestation. So too will you dis-create the old in order to emerge renewed from the old rubble, just like the phoenix we have talked about earlier.

We know that this will sound overly dramatic to some, and it IS dramatic, for it entails dismantling all of the old scaffolding that has been erected around your core in order to make you into that old version of a human. For all of this old scaffolding has hidden the real you, and so, it needs to be removed completely for you to stand there out in the open, unfettered by anything standing in your way. But the process for removing all of these old obstacles need not be dramatic at all, for what it truly entails, is for you to see the full extent of them, so you can understand what it is that needs to be removed. This may sound complicated, but it need not be so, for all it takes from you, is a complete lack of self illusion.

You see, being human is in many ways adhering to a very set pattern, and now you need to lay all of that aside for you to step into your true role as creator. So learning to truly create means learning to un-create at first, and the processes are indeed two sides of the same coin. Remember, EVERYTHING is energy, and what is manifest, no matter if it is a stone or a flower, a chair or a human being, is simply the result of consciousness interacting with energy. You are already doing this 24/7, but you are simply not yet aware of this. For what you see on all sides, is there because YOU created it. Because you are a creator, but so far, you have yet to be a conscious creator, and as such, that is what needs to be fully awakened within you. And in order to do so, you need to sit up and take notice. For it takes a lot of effort for a human to understand that what we need you to understand, is that this process in itself is effortless. This again will sound like another one of our riddles, but what we are trying to make you understand is this: you can step into this process of becoming a conscious creator literally in the blink of an eye, for all you have to do, is to stop doing what you have been doing, seemingly forever. And that is to use all of your effort to try to keep up the illusion you are currently being suspended within.

For that is just an illusion, co-created by you and your fellow men, and you have agreed to uphold that illusion at any cost. And so, you are siphoning off almost all of your energy daily in order to keep up this old and outworn illusion. So no wonder you all feel exhausted. But the moment you withdraw your energy from recreating this same illusion over and over again, you will also reclaim ALL of your own energy, and you will erase all of those old patterns of illusion, and begin anew. And so, you will simply become a creator from free will, not one that is a part of a superimposed plan, wherein each and very member of the human race have played their unwitting part. Remember, there are no longer anyone sitting in a dark corner somewhere, pulling your strings, forcing you to be a part of this old illusion. Their powers no longer have anything to say over you, and so, you are indeed free to withdraw yourself from this old staged battle and start to unroll your version of the world. The version that is steeped in light, not in darkness, and where love reigns supreme, not the fear that have kept you all tagging behind those leading you off in the wrong direction.

And so we say, you must remember who you truly are, for you are creator gods in every sense of the word, but you must also remember that you are still very much feeding the flames of that old fire that has burned away so much of the inherent powers of humanity. You need to withdraw yourself from this, the old play acting, and step into your own powers in a way that will enable to you literally begin anew with a blank slate. And you are the only one who can do that, for there is no power in All of creation that can force you to relinquish the hold on the old, nor are there any power anywhere in creation that can force you to stick to it. The only one that can decide whether you choose to engage your true powers as a creator, is you and only you.

So again we say, the choice is yours, and we are well aware that the mere thought of this responsibility will make your mind balk. For it will seem to be a burden of immense proportion, but it is not. It is simply a freedom of immense proportion, but we are also aware that to many, the weight of total freedom is too much to bear. This is not said as any form of criticism, rather, it is to remind you that we are fully aware of the task that you have taken upon you, and we are here to support you every step of the way. We do not think any of you not sufficiently strong enough to fulfill the task of reclaiming their own freedom, but we will not think badly of you if you choose to forgo the chance this time around. For the choice is yours, and yours only, and we will honor your choice, no matter what you choose.

But we would also like to add, that we see so many of you already hovering at the brink of jumping into that total freedom of becoming your own true creator once again. For you have been there before, many, many times, but you have not yet been able to savour the feeling of being a true creator god whilst within a human body. And that dear ones, is an opportunity many, many would wish for. But you are the ones who have been chosen to be given the chance to experience it, and we do hope that you will jump at the chance to do so. And remember, you cannot go wrong here, for even if dismantling the old illusion you carry within may sound like the death knell to all that you are, it is actually the signal to become reborn with all of true you still present, and while still ensconced within that same physical body. For this is not about self-destruction, this is simply about removing the obstacles that have been put upon you, and that you have unwittingly played a big part in upholding. For if you do not choose consciously to let them go, you will still let them carry you with them, so you become ruled by them instead of you becoming free to rule yourself.

So again we say, do not let go of the real you, and give yourself time to step back and take a good look at everything you see all around you. It may seem to be solid, unwavering and impossible to escape, but it is no more permanent than a wisp of smoke. And by a wave of your hand, it will dissipate forever, and you will see through the old illusion, and you will enter that wide open space where your world, the world of your dreams, is waiting for you to make it emerge in all of its glory.

By now, you will all have had your moments of “what is happening to me? And what is the next step I must take?” Or “why is nothing happening at all, I must be doing something wrong.” Well, let us answer all of these questions with one simple answer; you are not doing anything wrong, in fact, you are right where you are supposed to be. And even if you feel almost like being pushed into a corner, that is also exactly where you are supposed to be. And no, if you do find yourself as if between a rock and a hard place, it is not because you are meant to be stuck there, suffering, while you see others floating by on a cloud of bliss. Remember, this process is indeed a very individual one, and bit by bit, pace by pace, you are all following YOUR path towards the same goal as everyone else.

Again, we wanted to remind you not to peruse too closely what your neighbour is doing at the moment, rather, stick to your own sphere of enlightenment. And what do we mean by that? Simply that there is no one outside of yourself that can furnish you with any clear cut answers as to what you must do or not do in order to move ahead on your path. That does not mean that you cannot get any help from anyone outside yourself, far from it. In fact, the only way to continue onward on your designated path, is to open yourself to outside influence by the way of listening to what others can see from their point of view. You see, as you are all travelling on so very differentiated paths towards that same goal, you will all be able to see this process only from your own very special point of view, and as such, the more you are willing to see the bigger picture as it were, the more you will be able to see your role in it. And as such, it is important not to shut the doors and go into seclusion, for you must understand that at no point can you be able to get the full scope of everything, and so, you need to surround yourself by other voices.

This does not mean that what they say, outweighs anything that you yourself have sensed is important for you. Rather, it simply means it will add some nuances to the picture you yourself are painting up, and so, it will literally help you all to see more clearly what is your truth in all of this. For remember, as you all came in carrying your own unique frequency, you will always have to go within first to discern that what you are picking up from the outside resonates with your frequency or not. Sometimes, what others may bring about will add to the clarity of your tune, while other times, you will find yourself literally going out of tune if you try to tune yourself more into what others are giving you as their truth.

This may sound complicated, but what we are trying to say is simply this: only you can know what is right for you, and that includes anything from the choices you make in your daily life, to the information you choose to take in, and indeed what you choose to do with all of this information. And as such, only you can know what is right for you by being connected to YOU at all times. So whenever you feel yourself stuck in any way, go within, but also go without, for as we have reminded you again and again, this is in all accounts a collective process, even if it is broken down into individual pieces. So as you go within, you are best served by allowing yourself to listen well to anything that may be coming in from the outside, for more often than not, the key to unlock the vaults that have been hiding the answers YOU seek, may come from the outside. Not as an outright answer to anything, rather, as a more or less subtle signal – or in some instances a rather abrupt push in the back. So you see, you all carry the answers you seek, the manual if you will, within you. But in order to clear the fog that oftentimes clutter up your own view, you need to allow a breath of fresh air from the outside to penetrate your own abode to help you to clear away the cobwebs. We speak in riddles as usual, but we think you all have some experience of what we are talking about already. For as we said, no one can force you to do anything or indeed not do anything, this is up to each and every one of you to decide. But no one can force you to stop staring at your own fog either. For all they can do, is to hand you a tool that you can use in order to clear your own mind of any obstacles that may be obstructing your view.

For you must find your own way forwards, even if that at times entails taking what for others may seem as a step back. They cannot know what is right for you, for they can only see this from their own perspective, and again, what you all see, will be coloured by that very frequency that you came in with. And so, what is seen as right for you, may be detrimental to another, and the other way around. So again we say, go within, for that is where you will find what is the right way for you to proceed, but do not discard the outside assistance in the form of information, appreciation and indeed loving support that you all need. For this path is not for the faint of heart, but it is also not meant to be taken in solitude. That would in many ways defy its purpose, namely to let mankind enter a phase of collaboration that it has yet to experience, where each and every heart on this planet is connected to everyone else, and where each and every individual will shine with their own special light, while at the same time, revel in the fact that everyone else around them is doing the same in a way that only they can do.

For you are all individuals, but you are also just a fragment of larger whole, and as such, you need to trust yourself enough to open up to the guidance and suggestion from the collective, but in a way that make you more aware of what sings in tune with your life path, and what can make you deviate from it. For you all know what your task is, but you must do it your way, not in a way that seem to be more attuned to what others may think of your path. For it is your path, and your path only, and even if the end goal is the same, you will approach it from your very own angle, and so, you will see everything from your perspective, and it cannot be likened to anyone else's. But if you allow yourself to compare it to what others may report they are seeing from their angle, it will help you to find your way even better. For you need all the colours of the spectrum to make up the whole, and even if you must navigate by your own very specific hue, your choices will indeed stand out much clearer if you allow yourself to see your colour through the eyes of another.

So again we say, stay focused and stay centered, but stay open so you do not close yourself off from any navigational assistance that may be offered from others. It may come in the form of words or deeds that inspire you, or it may come in the form of words or deeds that shake you up or even anger you. But they are there to make you ascertain your choices, not to push you off your chosen track. So just as the artist will see his painting far better if he takes a few steps back from the canvas he is working on, you must also lift your eyes from time to time to take in the view that others see. For this will help you to see yours just that much better. And, like the artist, you will see better what needs to be corrected on your work, so it can attain the perfection you so strive for.
