

For now, you have already attained so much of what you came here to do, but there is still a while yet before you can see the full scope of your accomplishments. Indeed, you will all find yourself wallowing in frustration at one time or another in the time ahead, and the reason for that will be the simple fact that you all know at a higher level of your being that what you see around you in no way resembles the reality you have already stepped into energetically. In other words, what you SEE is not what you have, and as such the gap between the two is one that will be difficult to navigate for many of you in the time ahead.

For now is when the challenges arise, the ones that are born from the certitude that you already know that your mission to this planet has been a success, but as yet the fruits of your labours may seem to be invisible to you. Therefore we say to all, prepare yourself by allowing that inner core of yours to step to the forefront in any way you can, for as long as you maintain the connection between your human self and your own true self inviolate you will at all times find a way to navigate through what at times will be very choppy waters indeed. You see, the effects from your successful energetic endeavors over this last period of time will soon make its appearance known to all, but it will do so in what can only be described as some unexpected ways and at some seemingly inopportune moments. You see, this is a period of fluctuations that will bring with them what may seem on a superficial level to be upheavals in every connotation of the word, but as long as you maintain that inner connection, you will feel literally in your very bones that this is not about tearing apart, this is all about starting to settle in to some very new patterns indeed. And as such, what can be easily misconstrued as demolition for the sake of demolition itself is simply all about reaffirming what has already been set into motion.

For now, the wheels are well and truly set in motion on this new playing ground that you have already designed, the place where your origins will play a vital role in your everyday life in a manner that has not been possible before. For earlier, mankind has been held within an energetic environment designed to withhold so much information in such a way, the friction and frustration it created has driven you all into either a search for an inner truth or towards what seemed to be a higher ground but turned out to be a one way street towards destruction. But thanks to the likes of you, the number of people rejecting that headless run towards the latter, the entirety of mankind has been given the opportunity to think again, and to do so in a space of energetic beneficence that will enable every single one to have the opportunity to hitch their wagon to this jubilant group of intrepid explorers that you count amongst, the ones who have already turned their back on the old world, and by the very act of deciding to do so has opened up the unexplored hinterlands and crossed over the lines demarcating the known from the unknown, and you have made what was once not only inaccessible but also unimaginable become a fact of life.

For you have already crossed over that high range hiding the promised land from view from the old version of you, and as you all know, that trek has not been without its challenges nor its sacrifices. But you have made it, and as you ventured ever higher and ever further away from your humble origins, you literally opened up a path for every single individual still waiting out the remainder of their lives back in the land of lack and fear. And now, the path ahead for them is clear cut and well lit, and so, many will in the upcoming weeks and months suddenly find themselves under the spell of an urge to explore that will be so strong, they will see no other option than to act upon it. And as a veritable flood of light, they will toss aside the old millstones that kept them weighed down and chained to the old world and they will set off on a trek that will be a much smoother and far less daunting one than the one you, the true pioneers, had to endure.

But again, that is why you came here in the first place, to be the pioneers, the roughnecks, the ones that knew that no thing would mean more to you than to follow that inner calling from your heart, the calling that will send you spirit soaring up, up and away from the life you had been living up until that moment in time. And one by one, you heeded the call, and you packed your bags and set off, tossing off your old belongings one by one as you by and by realized that where you were heading for, there was no need to bring along the old baggage that you once thought was essential for you. And so, as you continued ever onwards, you did so more and more unencumbered by the weight of the lessons from yore, while at the same time you started to see that these lessons were indeed essential in themselves for your preparation for this exodus. But then, the time came for you to step away from them in order to make this pilgrimage feasible. And so, here you stand, on the shores of what can be termed as the promised land, but a more accurate description of it would be the chosen land. For where you are, is where you have chosen to migrate towards, and what has drawn you to this space in time, is the inner calling, that constant vibration within, the tuning fork that has led you to take every single step and every single decision you have ever taken, not just in this life, but in all of the previous ones. For you just knew where you had to turn at every crossroads that was offered you, and so, step by step, by dismissing every single option that was not in tune with this, your true north, you have made it all the way here.

But now you stand here, and you look around, and you will say “is this it?” and if you take a cursory look around you, we do not fault in you in thinking just that. For what you see, will look eerily similar to everything you think you left behind. So we say look again, and this time, look with your heart, and we think that what you see will be a very different landscape indeed. For then, you will see the potential, and then, you will see the love and then, you will see the approaching multitude of enlightened beings coming towards you from all sides. For then, you will know in your heart of hearts that you are HERE, you have arrived, and now, it is time to roll up the sleeves and get to work, pitching up your camp and starting to get things in order. For now, much will be set into motion, actions and ideas, connections and configurations, and as you begin to settle into this very new energetic environment, you will feel how everything literally kicks into life, inside and outside, in every single way you can think of. For now, you have truly arrived in the land of plenty, where life will spring forth in a manner and at a speed that is unlike anything you have ever witnessed, and as it begins to pour forth, it will only serve to increase the speed of everything around it again. And so, what may look like a barren field devoid of both life and promise at this exact time frame will show itself for what it really is, a blank canvas vibrating in anticipation, ready to spring into action at the first conscious touch from your newly emerged powers.

For you are here to create it all, and even if the framework, the grounding if you will, is already in place, all the rest needs to be constructed from all of the bits and pieces you have all carried with you on your journey, waiting for the right opportunity to come into light again. For as you jettisoned all of the old baggage on the long journey that brought you here, you also freed up the necessary space that all of this hitherto unclaimed potential could latch itself onto. And so, like a magnet attracts iron filings, your very being attracted piece after magnificent piece of this for so long untapped potential, and even if this added luggage carries so much weight, it is not a burden to any of you. Far from it, for it is this willingness to let go of the old and allow the new to step aboard that has lightened the load sufficiently for all of you to arrive where you are at now, and it is your willingness to not stop and turn back to wait for stragglers or to pick up any left luggage for others that have enabled this mass transition to take place. And so, you are the true creators of this new land not just filled with promise, but also flowing over with already manifested potential. For even if you will find it nigh impossible to even perceive any of this newly minted reality just yet, know that it is already here, and it is here because you have already created it – in your hearts and in your higher aspects, but as yet, little or no traces of it will seem to be readily available to the more down to earth human parts of you. Again, this will be apt to cause frustration to blossom in so many of you, so know that this is simply a stage that needs to be endured, and the best way to do so, is to try to close your eyes to the way the outer world still appears to you and to do what it takes in order to help yourself to see it all through your heart.

We know that these words are more than apt to cause frustration themselves, but be that as it may. We are simply doing what we are here to do, namely to remind you all that you are far, far greater and far more accomplished than what you are currently able to discern yourself, apart from the occasional small glimpses of this greatness some of you get at irregular intervals. So again we say keep your focus where it should be, and it is not on something that will cause your heart and you vibration to drop. We know that you all know what we are talking about, for it is indeed imperative that you do not allow yourself to wallow in the old mud. For now, the best thing you can do in order to help your own soaring spirit to stay aloft, is to allow yourself to find a way to not struggle to find a new wave to ride.

All you need to do is to relax into the seemingly empty void that surrounds you on all sides, for you have all the support you need now, so just try float freely in this endless energetic sea.

For even if it may seem to be dead calm, it is quite simply teeming with life, but for now, you are all required to just BE in this energetic bubble for a little while yet, until all the factors are again readied for a new spurt of growth. For remember, this is a highly complex operation, and even if you think you are just bobbing around in a backwater, you are in actual fact being readied for all of the tasks that awaits you a little bit further down the line, so again we say that patience is indeed of the highest importance now. It is no use to try to force things, for that will only serve to heighten your frustration. So just allow this to unfold at the designated pace, and know that even if you at times will be hard pressed not to find the seeming inaction of things more than a little annoying, know that you are at all times in the middle of a beehive of activity, and even if you cannot perceive much of it yet, so much is happening at literally lightening speed at all times.

So allow yourself to simply BE, and if need be, allow yourself to be frustrated too, but know that all of this seemingly pent-up energy that will be nipping at your heels like an impatient dog is just a signal that at a higher level, you just know that you have arrived at the place where ALL of your potential will finally be allowed to step forwards. So know that all is well and everything is happening at the exact time and in the exact sequence that it has been designed, so just trust your own inner voice, for that will continue to send out the same signal of reassurance if you allow yourself to listen to it. And soon, this period of seeming inertia will come to an end, and you will all be catapulted out into a veritable feast of energetic activity that will bring you not just elation, but also instance after instance of opportunities to say “well done”, not just to yourself, but to the collective. For then, you will all be engaging in acts and in deeds that cannot be described in any other way than moments of bliss. For then, you will begin to truly DO all the things you came here to do, and that is when your heart will finally begin to sing in earnest.

---

432

Let us serve up some more information on the matter that you are all created from. For this is in every way all about matter, and about how this matter comes into being and indeed seemingly ceases to exist. For as you know already, this is in actual fact all about energy and of the transformation of such, for there is never anything that ceases to exist, it is simply transposed into another stage of being. In other words, what was once created will always BE, but it will never be the same for eternity. That goes for all of you, but it also goes for all of the stars on the firmament, and indeed, the very firmament itself. For the firmament is no such thing as “firm” or intransient, it is at all times a living organism fluctuating between the different stages of creation, going from “birth” to “death” and all of the stages in between simultaneously. And you are a part of this at all time fluctuating mass of matter, blinking in and out of “existence” – or rather – perception – on a regular basis.

For this Creation that you see before you is nothing more than an illusion, created of a myriad of dancing particles coming together to form different forms, whether that be of the gaseous, the liquid or the solid kind, and then, it will change back into its individual particles when the time is right for it to do so. And so, on and on it goes, and from as early as you can cast your minds back, mankind has been searching for that elusive template that can explain all of this in a logical manner. And so, you have searched ever outwards and the ever inwards as your abilities to reach further than your own inborn senses have allowed, and you have found much, but the more you discovered the more perplexed you became, for it became more and more clear to all that what you found merely confirmed that this answer was even better hidden than what you thought it was.

But now, you are indeed approaching a time in space that will bring you closer and closer to this secret, for now, you are beginning to become mature enough to seek in the right direction instead of sending off inquiries into all of the blind corners. For now, mankind stands before a golden age of true discoveries, discoveries that will not simply supply you with so many of the answers that you have searched for for eons, it will also supply you with the answers to questions you have not even thought to ask. And so we say, prepare yourselves for an age of discoveries that far surpasses anything you have ever experienced before, and where you will make those fabled quantum leaps in all areas of your lives, and you will not just do them once, you will do them repeatedly. For now, you will leave behind all of the outmoded models of thinking, and when you do that and allow the information to flow freely, not just for you as individuals but between you all as a collective, then you will truly begin to tap into that vast ocean of light that will literally sustain you forever. For then, you will not only dream of solutions to your problems in a very literal sense, you will also find a way to create them by allowing your individual resources to be pooled together in such a manner it will make all of the old inhibitions melt away. And with them, any restrictions as to what you as a species can be capable of will fall to the wayside, and you will rise again as the golden ones you really are.

For you are no longer the creatures of habit that you used to be, the ones that disallowed themselves from entering their own greatness, the ones that clung to the same old, same old in every aspect of their lives and through that, served to uphold and feed a form of civilization that was untenable for all, so too the very planet on which you live. For now, you have stepped away from that, and soon, you will step fully into your true roles as re-creators not just for yourselves, but your whole civilization in such a way, there will be little or no remnants left of the old, except perhaps in a museum here and there. For now, you stand poised before an age of expansion, and expansion that will bring with it more light, more space and more freedom for all. And it will be given freely to all, and there is no way that any of these gifts can be hoarded by a few. For you can have all that you need, but you will not be able to take more than you need, not at the expense of others, nor at the expense of the world in which you live in. And so, what you will begin to realize is that you have literally moved from an existence based on the archaic idea of lack, an idea that has only served to bring you all including your planet into a state of total imbalance, and now, you will begin to notice that you have moved fully into a state of being that is all about balance, because it is all about abundance for ALL.

Of course, this will not be apparent to all, neither will it become fully apparent to any of you from the very onset, for it takes time to readjust yourselves after eons of living in a very different atmosphere indeed. But this is what you have already created, and so, it will come to you, like drops of golden light that will slowly but surely permeate every single particle of your being. And yes, we do mean that in a very literal sense, for this change is one that occurs on a cellular level, by changing the very forces of nature that are the building blocks that your human body and indeed everything that surrounds you are made of. For you are all matter, matter made from the dynamic movement of energy, a dance of life, created from particles that again are created from energy interacting with itself in such a way, it begins to coalesce into the tiniest fragments of Creation, and these again come together to form atoms, molecules and then on and on until you stand there complete. As a human being, as a plant or a rock or a drop of water or what have you – you are all cut from the same cloth, the very fabric that everything in your universe is made from. And now, thanks to what you and so many like minded souls have taken upon you to do, this very fabric in itself has changed, because the very frequency it carries has been reset and retuned in such a way, everything that it again creates will be different from what it used to be.

For now, you are all singing to a very new tune, and this is the tune of abundance and light, and because of that, what you again create will all carry this same signature, the brand new signature of the brand New World, and through you, all of this new will come about. And so we say know that even if you will still hear the echoes of the past ringing in your ears, and even if you will still see the shimmering shadows of the old world paraded before your eyes, know that this is simply the remnants of the old vibrations fading away. Granted, they might linger on longer than you perhaps thought would be possible at this stage, but know that it is all fading away even as you yourselves will begin to feel more and more of your own new existence literally solidify into a tangible form that you will be able to see, feel, taste and touch instead of just detecting the energetic presence of it through your own heart. But again, know that this is indeed an ongoing process, one that will have to take the time it needs to take in order for everything and everyone to be able to fully function within it.

For this is not something that will be an “overnight sensation”, or rather, the energetic sensation of it will indeed be felt instantaneously by all, and for many of you, it has already been felt as a very tangible presence within, while for others, this new arrival has yet to make itself heard. But as a collective, it will take some time before it all literally sinks in all the way, or rather, before it fully emerges in all of its glory on all sides around you. So remember to check in with yourself every time you seem to be adrift on that old sea of despondency and despair, for it is merely the dying embers of yesteryear still casting its shadows over you from the theater of broken dreams still being played out on the outside. For we cannot repeat often enough that it is your inner vision you must hold on to, the one that will never fade away, the one that will only continue to grow bolder and more prominent as the days and weeks continue to unfold. For that is your true world now, and it will begin to materialize in so many ways now that you have finally decided to let go of the ever weakening illusion that used to be your old habitual haunts, but is now no more than a relic of the old and misguided intentions of mankind.

So step aside and let that bedraggled train of limiting thoughts pass you by, and instead step inside that golden chariot you have created for yourself, for that is the one that will allow you to serve your true purpose of helping the New to unfold fully by letting the very essence of your being take the driver’s seat. And this chariot will take you all away from the lower reaches and all the way into the lofty spheres that will enable you as a collective to make all your dreams literally come true – in every sense of the word and in every aspect of Creation. For remember, what you do, you do for ALL, and through you, the New Man, the New World and indeed the New Universe will be created from the vibration you have already set. For you have set the tune, and now, everything will fall into place like a magnificent orchestra creating a masterpiece of a symphony by allowing themselves to literally fall into step and tune with everyone else. And as a glorious collective you will rise from the ashes created by the very idea of separation, for in this, you will once again become ONE, not just with yourself, but with All of creation.

---

433

Let us begin this missive by saying that up until now, the fluctuations caused by these new frequencies may seem to have left nothing more than traces of physiologic unrest in some of you, while for others, it will seem as if they have been bypassed altogether by these insistent emissaries from the higher spheres, but that is not so. Indeed, you have all been deeply affected by these callers, whether you have noticed their appearance within your energetic sphere or not, and the impression they have made on you all, is a lasting one. For what they have done, is to enable some of the deepest recesses within your framework of high resonance channels to open, the ones that allows the form of multi-level communication we have talked about earlier. In other words, even if all you have noticed over the last few days can be classified as more or less annoying – or in some cases even debilitating – symptoms, what you have achieved, is a full and comprehensive download of energetic instructions, instructions that will serve you in ways that will enhance not just your innate abilities to reconnect and retune yourself fully to the inner sanctum of Creation, but that will also serve to inoculate you against further interference.

Let us explain. As you are all aware of, your collective ability to connect fully to the Field or to Source, to use a word many of you are more familiar with, is one that has been kept dormant for eons. For as mankind set out to explore the deeper recesses of any and all byways they could think of, they were also serving a purpose that was not on the agenda from the beginning. In other words, there was an intervention taking place that served to debilitate further those inner sequences that served as your guiding posts, and as such, this exploration into all the shades of behavior took a turn that served to skew the balance far too much over to the shadier side. And so, the natural path of evolution was tinkered with in such a way, you as a collective were sent off to explore paths that served to cater to the desires of a small group of beings more set on fulfilling their own needs than to leave things to unfold at their natural pace. And so, the end result was a world on the brink of self-immolation, and the decision was made on the highest level to inject a vast quantity of light into the spectral field around your planet in order to awaken those amongst you who could serve as anchors for these highly charged missives of light. And that is what you did, and the results from this heightened frequency of purified light can be seen, felt and experienced by you all, as that is why you are taking in the content of this message at this very moment.

For you were the ones that came in to serve as the navigators for all of mankind, the ones that decided to take the rudder back into your own hands, and by opening your hearts fully to the light, you unfurled those huge sails of love that had been kept safely tucked away in a hidden corner within your very soul. But now, those sails are billowing in this ever increasing intergalactic wind of hyper charged particles, and because you have maintained a safe anchorage deep within the core of your wonderful planet, you act as the propeller that drives you all onwards and upwards by allowing this wind to fill your gossamer wings of silken weave, a weave that is so filled with light it seems almost ethereal, but it is in fact stronger than any man made fabric you can think of. For your forward momentum is guaranteed by your conviction, and your conviction is so strong, it has already moved more than mountains. For you have shifted this entire world off its old axis, the one that was setting you all on a trajectory ever deeper into the morass of self-proclaimed inability to survive, let alone allowing the life that exists by your side on this wondrous sphere to continue.

For you have brought this world away from the brink of destruction and on to a plane that will allow you to flow freely in the direction you choose, and the direction you choose will be guided by your heart. For now, nothing can alter that course, for nothing can force you to veer off that course ever again. Because now, no form of intervention is no longer possible, for you have chosen to complete the cycle of evolution by allowing the light from Source to be the only source to guide by, and no amount of pre-programmed propaganda engendered by that old printing press of fear can persuade you otherwise. For you have passed that old fork in the road, the one where the choice needed to be made, the choice whether to fully comply to the old paradigm of surrendering yourself to external forces by allowing your fear to take the seat of power within your being, thereby relinquishing any and all grasp on the powers you truly possess as a sovereign being, or to choose to become YOU again, in all aspects and in all manners, by allowing that inner core of you to burst into flame again, showering your whole being and the world around you with that purified light that only can come out when you allow it to shine.

And now you shine, and no one nor no thing can ever dampen that flame again. That is, as long as you choose to continue to let it shine. For remember, the source of that inner flame is an unending one, it will never ever run dry, so the only way to quench that flame, is if you choose to choke off the connection to Source voluntarily. For that can be done, and we know there are those amongst you who will consider to do just that, so know that no matter what you choose, your choice will be honored, no matter what it is that makes you choose that option. For in this, you are all sovereign beings, and as such, there is no outside intervention in any way that can or will be allowed. For this is done by you, in every sense of the word, and if you choose to step away from you, then that is what you will be allowed to do, and we will not fault you for it. But again, your actions up to this point has helped to assure the continued success of this collective endeavour, and for that we cannot thank you enough. And that goes for all, irrespective of the choices you will make in the near and far future.

But remember, you are the pioneers, and the majority of you have come so far now, you will never even consider going back to where it was you came from. For you have shifted so fully into the New, you will only feel the urge to continue on. And you will also feel that ever increasing helpful push in your back, as that energetic wind that is filling your gossamer wings will only continue to increase over the upcoming days, weeks and months. And as the speed increases, so too will your ability to enjoy the ride increase, for you will feel how your vessel, including your wonderful planet and travelling companion, your Mother Earth, will pick up speed as the friction between you and the underlying energetic surface you sail upon will diminish. For as the frequencies change, so too will the density of the "soup" you are travelling in, and the rather rocky road you have been travelling so far will become smoother and smoother, until it is as if you are travelling on a cushion of air that separates you from the solid ground beneath you.

Again, we speak in parables, but we do think you will get the gist of this message anyway. For you have come so far, and the uphill struggle has been more than monumental at times, so it may have been too much for some and it may feel as if it still too strenuous for others, but rest assured that you have been sturdy build to withstand not only the initial stress of separation from the old, you are also more than able to endure the effects the increase in momentum will have upon you in the time ahead. For you are literally made of the same stuff as the stars, and your core is more than strong enough to surpass the speed of light, but still, there will be those amongst you less inclined to trust that inner voice, and you might be tempted to step off the fast moving conveyor belt you are all on at the moment.

For just like for an astronaut strapped into his seat awaiting the lift off of his rocket, the first rumblings from the ignition of that powerful engine may cause more than a little flutter of anxiety within. For you are all a small part of a huge and immensely powerful “engine” of evolution, one that is only now beginning to start up all of the booster rockets it has, so no wonder if some of you begin to question your decision to step aboard this vessel that is taking off for the unknown. But again, that is a natural part of this process, for you are in so many ways leaving behind all of what is familiar and heading out into uncharted territory, and you are doing it every single day, in every single way you can think of, and then some. So remember, whenever you feel as if you want to flee from this powerful process of complete separation and renewal, never hesitate to reach out to your fellow travellers. For you are all in this together, and you came here to do this important transition as a group. It is a group consisting of a huge number of individuals, all of you unique, and all of you more than capable of taking on any challenge that may come your way single-handedly. Yet, it is also an important part of this journey to relearn how to become a collective again.

For mankind has spent far too long separating themselves more and more from their own roots by allowing their idea of separation become a veritable religion. For the “me” has become the focal point for everything, the “I” has become the centre of the Universe, and the “I” thinks it will only survive if the “I” can outsmart, outrun and outlive all the others out there. And that is why all the “I”s became as powerless as they did. For only a collective of ONE can assure not only the survival, but also the evolution of All. So remember, do not stand alone, especially when you feel the anxiety of all the New fill you up to such a degree, it might feel more tempting to retrace your steps back to the old world you knew. For that is not where you will thrive, in fact, it will become even more unbearable to you than what it was before you allowed yourself to awaken. It has been said you can never un-learn something, and that is so true in this case. For you have already opened the door to the light, and with this light comes knowledge, knowledge of the one you really are, and of what you truly can accomplish, and no matter how hard you try, you cannot forget that again.

So reach out whenever you feel like just an “I” again, for you are so much more than that. You are a fully integrated part of All of creation, and as such, you will never be alone ever again. And as the light of this collective continue to increase, so too will the combined effect of all of these individual lights that make up this magnificent matrix of interconnected energetic channels that spans this globe. And now, you will, one by one, begin to experience more and more this deep connection that you all share. For you will no longer be the one and only soul, singing solo in the dark, you will hear other voices joining you, and you will swap stories and images, sounds and colours, and you will do so without the aid of technical equipment such as this. For as the veil continues to thin, your former single cells will become more like dormitories, where your energetic output will begin to bounce off the ones of the others, and the patterns that will be engendered by this, will begin to register in your consciousness in a very new way.

For you have come so far, and by allowing yourself to leave the old programming behind, you have come closer and closer to the singularity you all came from. In other words, this long and convoluted journey is for one purpose only, to end the separation and complete the connection, from billions of “I”s back to the ONE, the one that is composed of as many individual parts as there are individual entities, but that is a living, breathing single cohesive and co-operative unit that call themselves mankind. But it will be a mankind that has chosen to embrace themselves fully as sovereign beings, all choosing to empower themselves, and by doing that, they are giving All the same chance to do the same. For now, it will be All for ONE, and ONE for all, no one will be more nor less than the rest, and you will all choose to use your powers for the betterment of ALL. And that is why you will begin anew, as ONE being supported by all, and by all supporting each one.

So again we say, know that all you need to do, is to allow yourself to be a part of this ONE, by not allowing your old “I” to stand in your way. So open yourself up to the greatness that is you, and whenever you have a hard time feeling that greatness, all you have to do, is to reach out to some of the other souls that are on this journey with you. For they are all there for you, just as you will always be there for them – if you allow yourself to BE just the one that you truly are. And then, you will all find your days as singletons fading away, and you will begin to grow more and more confident in your role not just as a creator, but as a co-creator. For there is a distinction between them, and now the time has come for the collective spirit to come to the fore more and more. So if you still feel a bit timid on your own behalf, just allow your brothers and sisters to shine their light on you. For then, you will see that what they really do, is simply reflecting back that same great light they see shining so strongly inside of you.

---

434

By now, so much will have been irrevocably changed within you all, and as usual, the outside phenomena accompanying this internal turnaround may be hard to perceive. But again, what you see through those apertures in your head you call eyes accounts for only a small percentage of what is actually there to be perceived, so once again we will remind you that what you see is not all that you get. For there is a way to see beyond this small superficial presentation of “reality”, and that is by way of your heart to use a phrasing you are more than familiar with by now. But as you already know, we are not referring to that actual organ, those cells whose main function is to literally run this show that is your physical vehicle. No, what we refer to, are all those parts of you that do not actually belong inside said physical vehicle, but who have chosen to begin to interact with it in such a way, you too will begin to see beyond the physical limits.

And what is it that we are trying to convey in this very roundabout way? Merely to remind you all that now, you will be given the task to literally go beyond the limits of your own body as often as possible and in as many instances as you can devise. For you see, these limitations imposed upon you by your mind are still very much confined to these fleshy boundaries, but unless you manage to transcend that, you will still be governed by this small acreage of space allotted to you by way of this vehicle. And what do we mean by that? First of all, this is not in any way an encouragement to start thinking that the very idea of transcendence implies a total disconnection from the more tangible parts of you, for there are still those still set on thinking that this is the case. For to them, there is nothing they would like more than to leave this “mortal coil” behind once and for all and simply drift away up into the ethers.

Well, let us simply said that this is in actual fact a gross misrepresentation of why you are here in the first place. For you are not here to complete this prolonged process simply to allow yourself to shed this physical vehicle once and for all and return to that place you once came from before you started to manifest within such a corporeal existence as you have chosen to become a part of here on Earth. No, you are in actual fact here to BE here in that physical vehicle, but to transcend BEYOND the limits of that vehicle while still residing within it.

In other words, your role is to become the New human, the physical vehicle that may resemble the old one in many ways if you look at it from a superficial perspective, but who will turn out to be something so vastly different if you look at it from an energetic perspective. For you are here to become multidimensional beings yet again, but to do so while IN that physical vehicle. For only by being within that physical vehicle can you manage to manifest all of the changes that need to come into being in order to change the “outward appearance” of this entire planet. In other words, you will change this entire planet only by changing YOU, but you cannot change this planet if you do not understand the need to be PRESENT here in a very physical way. And yes, we do mean that in every sense of the word, as awakening literally means being fully present – within your body, within your mind and within your energy, at all times and in every way.

And so, your upliftment is a profound one, for it will take place while you still walk around inside of your physical body, but a vital part of this process is to become emotionally detached from it. Not as in becoming neglectful, callous or uncaring about it, for your body is indeed the one reason that makes all of this possible in the first place. No, what we are trying to convey is that you must learn to think beyond the confines of your body and to realize that your identity is not in any way connected to this physical vehicle at all. And why is this important? Because everything you have ever experienced on this planet has been experienced from within such a body, and so, your entire identity will hinge upon what you see when you look in the mirror. For to your mind, that IS you and no one else, but now, you must all train yourselves to see beyond that face, those limbs and that corpus and further out – by going all the way in. Again, what you seek will be within, but once you reach far enough IN, you will see just how far a reach you really have. For you are a truly limitless being, one that has no home except for that we call your heart. For your heart is that single pinprick of light that is set to your vibration, the one and only thing in existence that carries just that one signature tune, and that is where your heart is. For your heart is a photon of light, one singularity that was split off from that vast, shimmering ocean of singularities, given the task to cast about to see what would happen once your frequency started to interact with that of all of the other singularities you came across on your endless journey.

And now, your journey has taken you here, to Planet Earth, to be within a human body and to interact with countless other beings encased within a human body or within an animal, a plant or all of the other endless variations of life you find here. And for you, the task this time around is simply this: to finally allow that innermost part of you, that singularity of light that has no equal no other place in All of creation to come out from hiding so that you and everyone else around you can SEE you in all of your glory. For then and only then will others be able to finally release all of their own inner fire as well. And it is only by allowing that fire to burn brightly while still within this miracle of a human body you inhabit that all of these seeds of life encased within all of the other physical carriers on this planet can come fully to life once again.

So allow yourself to let go of the idea of you as simply a body, but also renege all of those old ideas of the necessity to escape from that physical vehicle once and for all by simply casting it away like a discarded piece of clothing. For if that is your choice, you will step away from the path you have already chosen by coming there, and as such your job will not be terminated. Rather, you will begin anew in a new version of you as a human. So stay true to you, and stay true to your calling to let the light begin to shine out from every single part of your human being by allowing that one single part of you that IS you to come alive again by saying YES to who you really are, and by embracing the very fullness of your being. For when you do that, you will feel endless, limitless and borderless, but you will never ever feel homeless ever again. For then you will know that home is where the heart is, and the heart is where the light simply IS. And now, it is time for that light to BE here.

So let us begin this one final issue of this volume of light by saying that this is not the end, this is the beginning of a whole new chapter in the life of All of creation. For now, you all stand poised to take that affirmative final step forward, the one that will tell ALL that you have finally decided to truly become the one you set out to be. And so, the celebrations have already started, for we can already see the commitment of your stride becoming apparent, as one by one you will step out of this door and enter the true halls of your own greatness. For what lies ahead is not idleness for any of you, for you are not here to simply BE, you are here to do great deeds indeed, deeds that will continue to change not just your planet, but the entire fabric of Creation.

For you are all true creator Gods, far greater than you have yet been able to see through those narrow slits of validation that constitute the former version of you. For now, you have awakened as the ones you are meant to be, the magnificent ones, the seers of light and not just the transmitters of light. For now, it is time to open your eyes fully to the greatness that you do harness, the greatness that is meant to become through your own actions and through your own words, through your deeds and through your imagination. For you are the creators, the ones that will help to give birth to and to nurture ALL of the great ideas that must come into being, the ideas who are still merely embryonic figments of potential if anything at all at this stage. For you are the ones who will give them wings and set them free to roam so that All of creation can lift off and into an even more elevated version of existence.

So go forth and create, go forth so that all of these ideas in turn can procreate a myriad of other ideas that will help ALL to see life the way that you see it. For you have managed to tear away the veil that has shut the eyes of so many, not just of mankind, but in so many other places of Creation as well. So allow that true force of the light to penetrate all the way into your newly awakened being, and allow that light to help you to push off from these by now so familiar shores and set sail for what is truly YOUR destination. For now, you will all scatter in every direction of the compass, not to diminish this truly impressive force of light that you have been so successful in amassing by coming together in this space, but to actually make it come into its full force by opening up the space in between you in such a way, All of creation gets the oh so necessary space it needs to finally expand out from its own limiting borders.

For you are the true pioneers, the ones that will help not just mankind, but All of creation come so much closer to fulfilling the task of finally expanding into its own true greatness, and as such, it is indeed time for all of you to do just that. So go forth with your heads held high, and know that for every step you take out into the hitherto unborn potential that lies there dormant on all sides, know that your very intention to explore it will awaken not just the ability but also the deep need to do so in ALL.

So once again we thank you all on behalf of All of Creation for walking with the light held high ahead of us all, and for taking us with you on this huge quest to bring the LOVE of creating out into full bloom. And know that in your footsteps so much will grow. For your love for exploration will ignite that same quest for exploring the light in so many others, and so, what you have sown by allowing yourself to carry all of this light for such a long a time and over such a long distance will now finally grow into what it was originally meant to be, a true garden of Eden that encompasses All of creation, where the love for life will finally come into its own. Thank you, that will be all from us in this space, we leave.