

Part 51

Chapter 27

Today's missive will for many pertain to the unknown, as we would like to take this opportunity to delve into the nature of your surroundings. Let us explain. For now, you have naturally taken most interest in what is near you, both in a physical and spiritual sense, but for now let us just cast an eye a bit further afield. We do this in order to remind you all that although you at the moment sit on a planet that seems to be hell bent on destruction, know that you are not alone. The vastness of space seems daunting to many, and in their quest for a better life, they cannot seem to fathom the fact that even if everything seems to be desolate out there from their perspective, it is by no means so. You are in fact looking out upon a teeming mass of life, and a very friendly one at that. Many will look up on the night sky and feel somewhat lost and alone, and they hanker to find something to console them when everything they see around them seems to be falling apart. We wish you could all see just how close we are, as that may give you cause for optimism. Do not worry, we will not stay invisible for ever, as we have already stated on so many occasions. You will be able to see us as soon as the time is right, but for now, let us just say that it is in the interest of all that we do not walk fully visible amongst you.

Make no mistake, we are here, on all sides of you even as we speak, but in order for this plan to be successful, we must bide our time before we divulge our presence to all. In the interim, many of you will have the chance to meet us in less conspicuous circumstances, and the imprints you receive from these encounters will be important in the times ahead. We are fully aware that standing alone on the surface of your planet now, even amongst your peers, is not an easy task, therefore we will utilize any opportunity we get to have "close encounters", to use a well-known saying, with as many of you as we can. This will strengthen the morale considerably, and it will give us all a well deserved chance to embrace each other. Remember, you are dearly loved by us all, as you represent something so unique indeed. You are in many ways the star pupils of the galaxies, and the work you all do is beyond reproach. Never have so few done so much to help not only themselves, but also the rest of their species, and we applaud your efforts dear ones!

We are aware that the presence of otherworldly beings on your planet is a touchy subject, as there are so many still clinging to the belief that mankind is the only evolved entity, not only on your little planet, but also in the vastness of cosmos. In other words, they think of themselves as the pinnacle of creation. Coming to the conclusion that they are not, will in so many ways run counter to everything they have staked their lives and indeed sanity on, so as the time comes for revealing that you are but a small drop in the vast ocean of so-called intelligent species, it will in so many ways rip the whole fabric of their lives asunder. This will cause so many of your fellow men to lose the firm grip on themselves that they have held on to for such a long time, and the outcome of this will not be pretty. In many instances, this will indeed cause many of them to give up on life altogether, and in other cases, their sanity. They will not and cannot face the reality that is waiting for them, and as such they will need to go back to the source as it were and start all over again.

The concept of "alien life" is something that has always followed mankind, and with good reason. You all carry deep within yourselves the knowledge that you are in fact connected to some sort of "alien lifeforce", but this knowledge has been willfully suppressed by that other "alien lifeform" that came in and took control in the days long gone. As we have stated earlier, it was in their best interest that these remnants of remembrance were removed once and for all, and for those still holding on to the ancient knowledge of their origin, the punishment was swift and remorseless. Think of all of the indigenous peoples, persecuted through the ages because they still held on to the teachings given them by their ancients. It was not only for the gold and riches they might be in possession of that they were in many cases obliterated, it was most of all to eradicate this deep well of knowledge once and for all. But they were not successful in this, and now these glimmers of ancient wisdom is indeed starting to seep through in so many of you. Never forget to send a prayer of thanks to all of those before you that managed to keep this little flame alive throughout the darkest of times.

Today, the preferred weapon against this knowledge is not as violent, but it is indeed even more effective. Ridicule is the way to go today, and we defy anyone who have been brave enough to touch upon the fact that they are more and more convinced that the stirrings they feel inside are in fact a result of this "alien connection" and who have given voice to this, have been able to do so without being met by scorn in one instance or another. It takes a strong heart and soul to stand up and talk about this to less than sympathetic listeners, and we thank those of you willing to do so. What you do is very important indeed, as your words help to touch that silent part inside those around you in a way that might help them start to listen to the voice inside as well. In other words, do not fear the ridicule, for in time, those that ridicule will be the ones that will be shamefaced when everything is finally out in the open yet again. And remember, it is such a momentous revelation, that for some, it will indeed be too much to digest. Therefore, it is far better to start playing with this concept beforehand, and to let yourselves get familiar with the fact that you are by no means sailing a solo flight out in the vastness of the universe.

Part 52

The nature of the forces currently masquerading as welldoers on your planet is well known to many, but for those still in the dark as it were, let us give you an explanation. A long time ago, after this planet was seeded with life and knowledge from All there is, marauders landed in the guise of innocent visitors. They soon took off their masks, and their true nature was indeed more than readily apparent to all. On the pretext of coming in as advisors, they managed to take away the freedom from each and every entity already residing on planet Earth, and from then on, their evil ways have made an indelible mark not only on the surface, but also in the very air you breathe. These beings harken from a world far removed from your shores, and their reason for arriving here is a simple one. They simply managed to mismange themselves in such a way that their own planet is no longer viable for life. This may sound very familiar to you, as they have repeated the process here on your planet. However, as they are not entitled to occupy and destroy any space but their own, the time has come to send them packing.

We have already gone into considerable detail concerning these creatures and their removal before, but we think it is prudent to repeat some of it at this point of time. Our reason to do this, is to remind that you are all at heart a very peaceful species, and the current state of affairs is in so many ways caused by the interference of outside forces of the dark kind.

Many will cry out in protest at this, and say that mankind itself is responsible for all of the darkness blatantly on show, but that is in fact not the case. The same people will also adhere to the principle of free will, and say that if mankind chose to descend into the darkness, then they must be allowed to find their own way back out of it. That may well be, but the reality is that mankind was misled down this avenue of despair by a species who did so in order to reap the benefits from all of this corruption, and it is therefore only prudent that this species be forcibly removed in order for mankind to finally see the error of their ways. Even if you mean well, you cannot help but to act against your own best interest because of the programming encoded into you by these creatures, and as such you have no choice but to be helped by outside forces, and this time by forces that are acting on the orders of All there is. And the order is easy to understand, namely to restore planet Earth to her former glory, and to ensure that all living beings on her will be able to act out their lives in accordance with the original plan. The original plan did not contain any traces of the greed and fear that have enslaved you all for generations, but in order to remove these stains, we need to intervene. You are a proud people, and you do resent being ordered about, but in this case it is unavoidable. Remember, the only reason for our presence now, is to ensure that you yourselves can cast off those shackles and proudly go into the future with your heads held high as free men and women – for the first time after the fall.

Part 53

These last few days have been intense indeed, as there are a totally new kind of energies being blasted onto your planet. Many have felt this, and their bodies may have been behaving in strange fashions. This will not be news to any of you, but we think it only prudent to give you an update on this, as it will be felt in so many ways also in the days ahead. Contrary to what many believed, things have not ground to a halt after 11.11.11, far from it. In fact, that day only served as a marker to convey the shift into a whole new spectrum of energies, and these have already managed to put their mark, not only on your physical bodies, but also on your planet. The weather is behaving in very accelerated ways in many parts, and as you might be well versed in by now, as above, so below. Therefore, do not think that anything is amiss if you are reeling from so many internal storms at the moment. By "storms", we mean any manifestations of new energies, such as intense feelings of heat or cold, sinus reactions, headaches, blurred vision or any other "symptoms" masking as some sort of physical disorder. As always, this is nothing to be concerned about, even if it will at times challenge you in many ways.

Remember to always give the body what it needs, whether it is rest or exercise, natural food, sugar or any seemingly out of the ordinary cravings you might experience. As we have stated earlier, it is of the utmost importance that you listen well to the signals that your body is sending you now, and that you act accordingly. However, it is also imperative that you do not misread the distress signals sent out from your body because it has a hard time accommodating all of these new frequencies. It will in many ways activate the alarm bells, and you may think that something is seriously wrong with you, when in fact it is only throwing a short-lived tantrum because it cannot yet read the signals it is receiving at the moment. We stress the words "short lived", as many of these intense reactions will seem to go over in a few hours, even if they feel like the oncoming of something that will put you out for days. Many will be surprised by how intense these symptoms will be, but they will be more surprised by the short timespan they will have. In other words, do not feel that anything is amiss if you wake up with all the classical symptoms of a severe cold coming on, only to realise that it has dissipated before the day is over.

These incoming energies will manifest themselves in many ways, and some of them will feel less than pleasant as we have already mentioned. In addition to the physical aspects of these energies, there is also a considerable probability for hardware malfunction. Let us explain. You as a society has build a web of electronic devices to govern so many aspects of your lives, and although they are in many ways very helpful, they are also a kind of an achilles' heel. In other words, they make you into a very vulnerable society. Take away all of these implements, and you quickly become more or less helpless. Just take a look around you and see just how much of the things you take for granted in everyday life is run by electricity and controlled by a computer chip. All of these instruments of modern civilization are very sensitive to fluctuations in the electric grid to which they are all hooked up, and as such they can be damaged in many ways if this lifesource of energy is manipulated in any way. Again, this is not information given in order to increase or instill fear, rather as a precaution so that you do not stand motionless in shock should such a thing happen.

We are aware that many of you have already experienced malfunction in some if not all of your own personal electronic apparatus, and this is in fact caused by these surges of electromagnetic energy, but they have all been caused by the change in your electric field as it were. Remember, you are all being literally rewired, and you have all started to sing to a different tune, and this tune is also affecting everything and everyone that comes into contact with this field of yours. In addition, your energyfield has increased considerably in size, so you do in fact have a much larger impact on the world around you already. Many of these malfunctions can be temporary, but we do advise you all to be prepared to encounter more of them, and also that you will also start to experience things ceasing to function altogether. Again, everything around you have been set up to function in the old energy grid, and now that you are starting to shift into a new one with a higher vibration, so-called inert objects will have a hard time to adjust to this. It will only be a transitional phase, as over time new and more "intelligent" appliances will take over from the ones you are currently using, and they will all be designed to run smoothly in this new environment. However, you are at the moment fully immersed in the last and most intense phase of this upgrading, and it will take some time before everything has settled into the new and final level. Therefore, we think it only prudent to inform you that this "unsettled" period will be going on for quite some time yet, so best be prepared for some sort of blackout from time to time. It might bring some challenges, but remember that they will only be temporary. That is all for now, we will return with more at a later date.

Part 54

Today's missive will touch upon the current upheavals starting to show their faces all over your globe. Many people have taken to the streets lately to protest the way their governments are treating their citizens. So far, the protests have been rather peaceful, but we do predict that this will change over time as the willingness of these same governments to listen to the voices raised up in concern will show itself to be non-existent. We refer of course to those seemingly peaceful corners of the world, where the dire straits of the financial markets have turned so many ordinary citizens out of their jobs and out of their homes. As the seasons change and the conditions get ever harsher, so too will the situation for all of these people, and many a temper will finally snap. Desperation can turn even the most peaceful amongst you into fighting lions, and we predict that there will be many a lion's roar heard as the weeks go by and the cold sets in. Most of all, these roars of protests will be heard in so many countries that have been considered as havens compared to the more brutal regimes in the world, and that might come as a surprise to many a ruler. They have become very complacent in their seemingly quiet little corner of the world, and they cannot foresee the force of anger that will well out from the deep ocean of their citizens.

Many will lift their voices and try to speak out in reason, but as we have stated earlier so much of this will be met by ridicule and contempt, and this will only serve to fuel the darker energies lying hidden inside so many of your fellow beings. These lofty men and women, impeccably dressed, will soon see the fury all around them as they continue to blatantly disregard the well-being of their countrymen, and they stand in danger of being swept away in the storm of discontent that is brewing. Remember, fear so often leads to violence, and we therefore implore you to keep your hearts and minds clear of this crippling intruder at all costs, for if not, you too will be swept away by these raging torrents of unleashed anger.

Many of you have already felt the pounding of these waves, as the collective is already sending forth so much fear into the ethers. Many, many thousands of people all over the world will go into a new year, fearing for the future of themselves and their loved ones, as the crumbling away of the old structures will continue ever stronger. Do not be surprised if you sometimes walk into a wall of anxiety and grief, as so much fear is already being emanated into your surroundings by people already feeling the tightening of the noose around their necks. Never in man's history have there been such a collective impact from the global state of affairs, and you cannot avoid being touched by it in some way or another. Therefore, we will repeatedly remind you all to stay centered and never lose sight of the approaching dawn, as you will at times be very hard pressed to do so. You will all experience the downfall of souls that cannot help but surrender to desperation, and many of them will be fellow lightworkers.

For some, the strain will be too much, and they will give up hope altogether that they will be able to reach the safety of harbour as they find the journey too strenuous to bear. Please reach out if you find yourself in such a situation and feel that you cannot continue any more. There is strength in numbers, and never before has it been more important to keep close contact with your fellow lightworkers as it will be in the times ahead. But again, you are only responsible for your own journey, so do not take it upon you to try to save those already slipping away. You can only ensure your own safe passage, but you can also strengthen the resolve of your fellow men by standing together and encouraging each other when the going gets ever tougher.

We know that so many of you have seen the wisdom of this already, and it gladdens us so to see all of these groups connecting in a wonderful glowing grid that covers the entire globe. Remember you can only be a part of this grid if you want it yourself, it is not something that can be pressed upon you. And again, you cannot force someone to stay connected either, if they themselves choose to let go. The force of this unifying grid is growing in strength day by day, so please remember to stay connected no matter what transpires around you. Alone, you will all be vulnerable, but connected you all share the same strength, and this strength cannot be conquered by any outside forces, only by your own fear. You are all so much stronger than you know, and now the time has come to reach in and find that power. It will be sorely needed, but never fear that it will ever run out. As long as you stay connected, the power of the entire universe is running in your veins, and that source can never ever be depleted. And contrary to the ever dwindling resources you are all harvesting from Planet Earth, this source will only increase in size and strength as more and more of your fellow humans are starting to tap into it. In addition, this grid also gives you more and more direct access to all of us, so remember that even if you are approaching the darkest of days, the light is only a hair's breadth away.

Part 55

Today's missive will cover an important subject, as we would like to delve deeper into the acquisition of knowledge on your planet. As we have previously stated, many of you are actually working very, very hard without you even being aware of it, as so much of the transformation of your species is being done behind the scenes as it were. Let us explain. As we have stated earlier, you as a species have been held back deliberately by those dark entities that have captured your minds and bodies for such a long time, and as a result, you are lagging far, far behind the rest of us.

By that, we mean that although you have developed much from your humble origins, and that you yourselves take much pride in just how far you all have come, it is but a small step compared to the progress the rest of creation has made. You have so much to catch up on, and this cannot be accomplished without outside intervention as it were. In other words, your normal pace of intuitive development will not and cannot help you step away from the abyss that your previous faltering steps have led you to, and as such you need a firm and steady hand to lead you all in the right direction.

As we are more than well aware that many will take an umbrage to this idea, still it is indeed unavoidable. But do not fear this, you are in the hands of benevolent beings, with the intent of setting you all on a course that will ensure a safe landing in a very safe harbour indeed. But before your arrival there, there is so much work to do. Do not think that everything will be done for you, and that all you need to do is to sit back and relax and let the cleaners do the work that is so sorely needed on this battle-scarred planet of yours. Far from it. You have all come here with one task in mind, namely that of a voluntary workforce, all set up to break this cycle of wanton destruction and bring this planet back to the pristine state it once was. In other words, this is not a journey for idle hands and minds, this is more like a "working holiday", and now all hands are needed on deck.

Make no mistake, it is a formidable task indeed, but it is one you have all prepared well for, and do not forget that you are not doing this monumental task alone. Many have fallen into the misconception that we are here to fix everything for you, and that all you have to do is to enjoy the show. Nothing could be further from the truth, as you yourselves are the main cast for this whole production. We are only the helping hands behind the scenes, but it is our task to ensure that you have everything you need to make this show a resounding success. We will supply you with all you need in order to play your part to perfection, and much of it has been set into place already. If you could see just how busy we all are behind the curtains making sure that everything is in the right place and working properly, and that every player is positioned correctly and being sent onto the stage at the exact time, maybe that could put your hearts more at ease. We may be invisible to most of you, but do not let that fool you into thinking that we do not exist. Much as the ever-present stagecrew at a theater, they are not seen by the audience, but they play a very important part in any production. Without them, everything would come to a grinding halt, much as this whole process would without the assistance of a vast multitude of helpers. They are a mixed crew indeed, comprised of intelligence emanating from all corners of the multiverse, and their tasks are as various as their origins.

But it is you who are the stars of this production dear ones, never ever forget that, and although the responsibility might feel to be a bit of a heavy burden at times, never forget that all the accolades that come at the end will be more than well deserved by you all. You have all done so much already to prepare for your vital part in this play, and now the time for the raising of the curtains for that one and only performance is coming ever closer. Indeed, you can already hear the rustling of an anticipating audience on the other side, but it is not yet time to raise the curtain and send the first performers onto the stage. And that brings us back to the importance of the information that still needs to be downloaded into so many minds around your globe.

Previously, we have touched upon the fact that so many of you are acting as carriers of this information, much like the transponders used by the telephone companies to relay all of the communication from one person and out into the ether into the ears and eyes of another. A better description is the way that a high voltage energygrid is relayed through transformers and the voltage is stepped down so that it can be brought safely into your houses and used in all of your appliances without burning out the circuits. This is an important part of this whole production, as the cast is much more numerous than appears to the eye. In other words, so many of your fellow men are indeed playing a very important part, but they are not aware that they are doing so. They think that they are only going about doing their regular job, but in fact at the same time, they are being seeded with so much information from an outside source, information that will help their brains think in completely new ways, ways that will help your planet reassert her rightful place in the universe. We refer of course to all of those scientists currently working hard all over your planet, bright minds that will glow ever brighter as they are being filled with the light from the multiverse, light that is being beamed into the bodies of lightworkers, and through them transformed into information that when being shone into the minds of these scientists will make them see the light for the very first time.

Already, some of this information have started to seep out, as there are so many astounding "discoveries" being made in the scientific community. We use these marks here to convey the fact that although they themselves will feel that they have stumbled upon something entirely by their own hard work, let us just say that they have been helped along by that unseen stagecrew busily working away behind the scenes, and as such they cannot take full credit for all of the wonderful work that they are churning out at the moment. But we do not begrudge them anything, as it is indeed vital that you yourselves take an active part in this process. Therefore, the brilliant minds on this planet will be used to the max, and it gives us much joy to see some of the results they are publishing already. Prepare for a veritable avalanche of new discoveries in this upcoming period, as we have stepped up the intensity of the downloads, and will continue to do so in the next few weeks. Again, pat yourselves on the back for all of the hard work you all do, and remember that even if you also at times feel like that invisible stagehand, working so hard to seemingly no effect, never ever doubt that your efforts are thoroughly appreciated by us all.

Part 56

As time progresses, many have started to lose hope in a new tomorrow, and this will also be visible in your circles. In other words, many lightworkers have started to dim their lights, and they will continue to do so if not something gets them literally turned back on again. The reason for this is easy to explain, as it takes more than stamina to keep on going down this path. The more information you acquire, the more impatient you might become, and the more impatient, the less tolerance you have for any seeming disruptions in the program. We have touched upon this subject earlier, but we would like to expound somewhat on this topic, as we can give you a sort of explanation on this phenomenon. We have to return to your concept of time, and the straitjacket this provides you with in so many ways. You are all well programmed to think in a linear way, and as such you have no way of even imagining the scope of the changes already accomplished on your planet. To an untrained eye such as yours, everything seems to be derailing and falling into chaos, and it takes a strong heart not to give up hope in times like these.

We, on the other hand, have a much more detailed outlook on the situation, and we can see that events are indeed going down as planned, and that all the set goals for this timeperiod have been accomplished. You are in other words well on the way to finalizing this gruelling turnaround, but from your perspective this can be almost impossible to see. We will therefore try to give you regular updates on the advancement of this plan, and hopefully set your hearts more at ease and strengthen the resolve in those of you still standing as it were. Make no mistake, this is a very, very taxing work indeed, and we are also well aware that it is indeed above and beyond what many of your fellow men can hope to accomplish during this lifetime. You are in other words not only the bravest of the brave, you are also unparalleled when it comes to your willingness to bite down and continue no matter what you encounter on your way. As we said earlier, you certainly deserve all the accolades you can get, and never fear that you will not experience the thrill of standing in the spotlight receiving your well deserved standing ovation, but before we get to that, there are still struggles to be met on the way. Again, we do not share these words in order to frighten you, rather to remind you that although you are travelling down a road very much obscured from your view, we have a clear scope on what is up ahead, and we have every reason to believe that you will all accomplish what you came here to do.

Let us return to the concept of time. This is something we have touched upon several times already, but it seems to be only prudent to remind you yet again that nothing has been set in stone, there is no defined timeframe for this, and certainly not a specific "end date". The latter point is the most important one, as it seems that too many have once again put their hopes on a certain date, and they now feel very let down by the fact that to them, life goes on more or less as it did in the period preceding this date. We have warned you before not to get too attached to these dates, as they will only serve to hinder you in attaining the ultimate goal, which is of course liberation from all of these old and crippling paradigms. You are passing from a linear timeframe, one that literally starts with birth and ends with a physical death, into one where you become a fully fledged member of the multiverse, where all the inhibitions of time as you know it ceases to exist. In other words, you will become timetravelers on par with the rest of us, but in order to achieve just that, it is imperative to know that you will do this while still ensconced in the physical body you are currently inhabiting, in other words, you will only be successful in this if you realize that you are not going to fade out of existence on this plane, and then be in some way "resurrected" in another dimension on another planet. You are here to accomplish the freeing of your body and mind whilst still threading upon Mother Earth as it were. In other words, you will have to accomplish your ascension whilst living that "normal life", and even if this seems like no more than science fiction, it is in fact just what you are all about to do.

You have already come a long way, and you cannot consider yourselves as "normal" human beings anymore. You have changed far beyond that description, in every meaning of the word. On the outside, everything looks more or less the same, but on the inside, you have all raised your levels of awareness and your levels of vibration to such an extent it is nothing short of a miracle. The only problem is that you yourselves have a hard time sensing just how far you have come towards attaining that final goal of true ascension, and that is what is holding so many of you back. It is for a good reason however, as you need to literally be able to keep your feet on the ground for the remainder of the process, otherwise you might find it very difficult to be here at all. Do not forget that your physical body and your mental body need time to readjust to all of these new frequencies, and if we let you just jump into it as it were, it would literally blow your minds if not your body to smithereens. Again, you have come so far, even further than we could have hoped for at this stage, but as you all need time to grow into the new you, please remember to give yourselves enough slack and try to stay out of impatience. It is a feeling justly felt, because deep down you are all well aware just how powerful you have become, but you have to hold back for some time just yet. Remember, timing is everything, so too in this process, and never doubt that when the time is right, you will all be allowed to shed the cloak of invisibility and stand before all shining your true light. Until then, do not allow yourselves to dim it down, even if you at times feel disconcerted.

Part 57

Today's missive will cover more of the same as the previous one, as there are indeed many lightworkers out there struggling at the moment. The energies coming into not only your own physical bodies, but also into the whole planet, is of such a magnitude they can create havoc in many ways. This does not mean that they are in any way detrimental, far from it, but they may cause upheaval in so many ways, from physical symptoms to political unrest. All this is a vital part of the process of course, but the outfall from it may cause some of you to go into fear. In other words, alarm bells are going off in many directions now, and it is indeed hard not to heed their call. Again, it is difficult for all of you to get a complete picture of what is going on at the moment, therefore we will at regular intervals remind you again and again that things are going according to plan, and that this seemingly chaos all around is only the last stage of the dismantling of the old. And underneath all of this deconstruction, a new world is being constructed, literally in front of your very eyes. But what is in plain view to us will be invisible to most of you, so we will give you some sneak previews into the wonderful world that is currently starting to manifest behind the veil as it were.

Tempers are running short at the moment, and the heat is on in so many parts of your world. People are running out of patience, and they are running out of hope, and this will in many cases manifest itself as outbursts of violence. But in addition, many people are using this energy to make their voice heard in less forceful ways, by standing up for their neighbours and for themselves, gathering together to protect families from being evicted from their homes, or spending time doing work for those less fortunate. Like drops of water slowly but surely hollowing out a stone, these acts of compassion and community spirit are growing ever stronger, and even if they on the surface seem to be insignificant in this ocean of fear and despair, they are indeed important messengers of things to come. You have been indoctrinated with the idea that everything will fall into anarchy and chaos if the powers that be loosen their grip on society, and that it will be up to each and every one to fend for themselves, defending themselves with arms if necessary in order to ensure their own survival. But that is not the truth. The truth is that when push comes to shove, only a few will resort to violence in order to try to get ahead of the rest. The majority of humanity will instead choose to open their hearts to themselves and to those around them, and realize that only by cooperating will they all be able to prosper. You do not need to be governed from the top down. If you understand this, then you have nothing to fear. A self-governing people know that they are but a small part of a whole, and they also understand the need to connect with everyone around them in order to make a sustainable and viable community. Look at the lessons from Tahrir square and other places where people have gathered. They make order out of chaos, and in a very short time they have organized a well-functioning little community based on mutual respect, not on fear and a false respect for self-appointed authority figures. This is a blueprint for what you all have in store when the smoke clears.

Contrary to what most believe today, you have all the resources you need in order for you all to prosper, and when we talk about resources, we mean everything from your own internal strength to whatever natural resources you need to literally survive on this beautiful, bountiful planet of yours. As it is now, all these resources are mismanaged in such a way it cannot be viable, and much is squandered, both those originating from Mother Nature, but most of all those that emanate from the very core of your being. You are all shining lights, but the flame of your soul has been dampened almost to extinction. Now so many of you have fanned these flames, and the bright light from you will show the way for all of those faded spirits out there. Many will try to douse your flame, and the results from all of their hard work is clear to see whenever you watch the outpouring from your medias. They cannot serve enough dirt, and they will continue to do so as long as they possibly can. Many will continue to fall under the spell of these wet blankets, so please be sure to use discernment whenever you encounter any of this dark matter. Look behind it, and you will see clearly their reason for dishing out this infected material. They know that nothing can hold people back more than fear, therefore they will sound the alarm bells more and more as they see their whole existence crumbling away beneath them. You, on the other hand, need to be vigilant in order to focus on the other side of the story. Namely that of the constant reappearance of light in every corner of your globe. It is slowly but surely seeping out, no matter how dark the surroundings appear, and we will constantly remind you to keep your focus squarely on this. If not, it is only too easy to be dragged back down into the dark sludge of yesterday.

Part 58

Many will have a hard time believing just what these imminent changes will entail, so we will give you some details on them in this missive.

As you might be aware of, your scientists are busy working at sussing out the intricacies of your universe, and so far they have only literally scratched a little bit of the surface. But now the information being beamed into your world from the realms above and beyond you will help these intelligent people to wrap their brains ever tighter around the facts that for so long have eluded even the sharpest of them. The fog will lift in so many ways, and we predict that there will be some very interesting disclosures in the time ahead. Watch out for world changing news, as that is indeed what you are about to receive. Many will have a hard time believing these results at first, because they will mean that so much of what has previously been taken for granted must be tossed on the scrapheap. In other words, all of the books on fundamental science will soon need to be rewritten, as you as a species are about to step into the realms of the unknown. Unknown to you, that is, not to us, as we have all been steeped in the deeper knowledge of the multiverse for countless generations.

As we have stated previously, you have so much catching up to do, and now you are on the brink of taking a giant step in a direction that will blow many a mind, even of the advanced kind. In fact, the more knowledge you possess, the harder to swallow these new bits of knowledge will be, because they will run counter to so much you thought was written in stone. Now so many of these old and outdated modes of thinking will need to be erased, and this will cause many a voice to be raised in protest. Remember, no one thinks kindly of those raising their voices in disagreement with what the majority adheres to, therefore these new and sensational findings will be met by much scorn and ridicule by those hell bent on maintaining their own lofty position. Especially if they feel like they are being toppled off their high chairs by someone less known and respected than themselves. But this disagreement will soon be put to rest, as the results will more than speak for themselves.

The discoveries we speak about concerns something so infinitesimally small, but it will indeed have far reaching consequences, as they will explain much of the tapestry that comprises the fundament of your whole universe. We speak about the building blocks of this mysterious universe, something that has baffled your scientific community for ages. But now, these tiny and oh so perfect little particles will start to wink on and off on their computer screens, and thereby starting to give away some of their secrets. First, it will be like a little whisper, but as soon as these bright minds start to listen to these tiny little voices, they will start to be let in on the big secrets as well. And then the whole scenario will start to change at an amazing speed. Because as soon as you start to grasp just what this whole firmament of yours is actually comprised of, the whole secret will be let out of the bag. And once that secret is out, nothing will ever be the same again.

We refer of course to the fact that the nature of the so-called dark matter and dark energy that for so long have eluded your scientists will start to show it's real face, and this face is the one that will speak about a new tomorrow, where you will have no shortage of energy or intelligence ever again. This is the elusive grid, the one that you have been effectively disconnected from for eons, but now the time has come to lead you slowly but surely back on to it. You are about to step into a bright tomorrow, and your scientists are the ones who will herald this new tomorrow. Watch out for the news, they are about to become public in a few day's time. And remember that although on the surface it might not sound like much, it is in fact the heralding of dawn as seen on the computerscreens in a laboratory not too far away.

Part 59

Chapter 28

A new voice has taken over, and from now on you will receive messages that will in many ways vary from the previous ones, but the gist of it will be much the same. However, the energy contained in these messages will change ever so slightly, as the bearer of them is someone else than in the previous ones. This will give ample opportunity to all to savour the flavour at their own volition, and it will hopefully bring solace to more than a few hearts. I will refrain from making any direct comments on actual events, but I will spend much time explaining the process you are in the middle of at the moment.

This process is a very beautiful one indeed, and one that has been heralded for eons of time, ever since mankind first set their foot on this little gem of a planet. She is indeed a most precious jewel on the firmament, and although her light is seriously dimmed because of mankind's treatments, it is not a light that can be or will be extinguished. This planet is a beacon for all to see, and she will take back her brilliance as you all watch in astonishment and awe, and you sweet children, are those who will cleanse her from all of the old residue still clinging to her surface. You are the bravest of the brave, as you have already been told on many an occasion, and it is our hope that you never forget this. As a brave, you are here to do important work, but if your valour is lost beneath a mountain of fear, you will also lose your ability to do the work you specifically came here to do. I am aware that this is a message that has often been repeated already, but this is a message that cannot be stated enough, as it is an inbred weakness in every human's mind to forget the strength and courage that resides perpetually in their hearts, and as such you all need outside forces to keep you focused on that pillar of strength you all carry deep inside. If not, you are destined to let go and be carried away by the flash flood of anger and fear that is about to be let loose on your planet.

You have come such a long way dear ones, and now the time has come to unveil this innermost chamber of your hearts, and to remain faithful to this, the real you, when everyone else around you resort to their basest behaviour. Never forget, the human soul is one that shines as brightly as the brightest flame, but you have all but forgotten to look into the light. Therefore, darkness has crept upon you like the setting sun's last rays. You have settled in for a long night, and after while, you completely forgot that there is a new dawn approaching. Nevertheless, enough of you have already started to remember this, and therefore you have already become alert to the heralding of the light's return, and have acted accordingly. You are as the rooster, alerting the rest of humanity that darkness is about to fade away once more, and it is indeed time to raise from the slumber and accustom your eyes to the brightening of the light on the far horizon. Your clarion call needs to be heard in the furthest regions of the people's hearts, so do not shy away from making your voice heard over the din of the somnambulant's snoring. You must be brave and shout it out loud, otherwise too many are apt to keep on snoring away their future.

Yours is an important work, but not a solitary quest. You have so many benevolent beings on all sides, all set on helping you to carry out your orders, and even if they cannot be observed by an untrained eye, in your heart of hearts you will feel the company on all sides. Remember to welcome them to your home, as they are indeed all in need of a little encouragement from you. If you do not open your door to them they will be left outside in the cold, with little or no ability to assist you, so it is indeed imperative that you invite them in to be at your side throughout this arduous journey. They are a beauteous multitude, and they can be of assistance in so many ways, but only if you let them.

Part 60

Please stay tuned to this channel, as it will bring regular updates on this ongoing process. Much has been said about this already, but remember that this is not a linear experience, and as such things will be very fluid and changeable throughout. In other words, it pays to keep updated, as in that way you can all get information that will help you through this transitional period. There are many fountains of information out there, and it is not given that each and every one of you should drink from the same one. Even though the end goal of this transformational process is the same, the path to getting there is an individual one, and you must therefore find your own way forward. It does you no good to blindly follow in the footsteps of others, as you all need to heed that small voice inside of your own heart. And remember, they all sing to a different tune, therefore your path forwards will be likened to someone else's backwards, and vice versa.

Do not rely on those who claim that they will be able to show you the right direction. As always, it is imperative to use discernment. The closer you get to your core, the easier this will be, and you will find solace and inspiration in the right sources, and naturally shy away from those calling to a different tune. That is a very important part of this metamorphosis, as you have all been too well taught not to follow your own source, but to rely too much on the authority of those that have put themselves above others, whether it be of a political view or spiritual one. Never forget, this path also attracts those always on the lookout for a way to enhance their own position, and they will prey on those made vulnerable by their own quest for enlightenment. I think you have all come into contact with representatives of this class, and they have in many ways had a field day by encouraging so many to distrust their own discernment and fall under the spell of these so-called spiritual leaders. This is not a casual dismissal of each and every one of them, only a warning that there are not a few of these self-entitled leaders that only want to serve their own egos by making others subservient. Again, you have been told that you do not need to be governed from the top down, and this also includes spiritual matters.

You are all gods, and the sooner you discover this, the better. And the word "god" does not refer to any sort of hierarchy, but only to the fact that you all harken from the same spring of eternal life and divinity. You have forgotten this, therefore you have made the assumption that some are more valuable in themselves than others, when in fact no one is above and beyond their fellow men. So much trouble has come from this misunderstanding, and only when this is cleared away once and for all, will you be free from this yoke. The time has come to cast off these shackles, and in doing so, you not only see yourself in a true light, but also all of those around you. Then, true compassion will arise, because then you will know for the first time that there is no distinction between you. You are all but a small drop from the same beautiful ocean, and please remember this as the times goes by and you find yourself wanting to focus only on the remnants of scum still littering the surface. That is only a thin film of residue left over from the old ways, but it is easy to remove. Yours is the task of diving down into the clear depths of humanity and infuse it with the light of tomorrow. And in order to do just that, you must dive below the somewhat murky surface in yourself. It too will try to keep you out, but never let it fool you. It is only like a sprinkling of dust, and it can be easily removed by finding that clear well inside of your own heart. Take a deep breath and take that plunge, it will change you forever.
